

JURY TO DECIDE COLLETT'S FATE SOON

Meandering

By WASH FAYETTE

Not everyone is aware of the intense interest of the public generally, here and over a great area, in the Collett murder trial. It has been that way since the shocking triple murder of the McCoy family was discovered early Thanksgiving morning, and perhaps the fact that the story "broke" on Thanksgiving day as well as the terrible details of the crime, added to the general public interest.

Monday night I walked into a confectionery in Columbus at the midnight hour, after having been at the Associated Press office and also visiting Bob Harper, editor of the Ohio State Journal, and some of the other newspaper men in the office at the time.

We were recognized by a woman residing near Greenfield, and instantly she asked:

"What's new in the Collett case?" as so many other have asked during the long weeks since the crime was committed.

"What are they going to do with him?" was the next question, and by that time every clerk in the place who had heard the crime mentioned, had drawn near and started asking additional questions.

After answering as many questions as possible, and we were on the point of leaving the place, a hefty colored woman who was cleaning up for the night, stepped up and said:

"Mister, may I ask you a question?" I told her to go ahead.

"Is Walter McCoy any relation to the murdered Elmer McCoy? You see I know Mr. and Mrs. Walter McCoy and their two children," she declared before I could tell her that Walter is distantly related to the murdered man.

People have strange foibles. . . like being afraid of thunder. . . Scientifically, there's not much to thunder. . . just a few billion oppositely charged electrons and protons bumping into each other up in the sky somewhere. . . At least that's the impression I got out of my brief exposure to general science.

But doggone if the soul-shaking sounds that come from those little hunks of electricity don't make me shiver.

It know it's silly. . . that there's nothing to it but noise. . . and that just because a couple of clouds get into an argument, I shouldn't cringe. . . but I do.

That distant, far-away, rumbling kind of thunder I don't mind. . . when I hear that, I just smile and thank my lucky stars I'm not where it's loudest. . . but when it claps and booms right over my head, my hair almost gets caught in it. . . it stands up so far and so straight.

Scientists also say that lightning comes before thunder. . . that it splits the air apart or something and the coming together of the air causes the noise. . . but I, privately, don't agree with them. The thunder makes gigantic sparks and that, . . . although I couldn't prove my theory to anyone who knows anything about what makes weather tick. . . is what causes the lightning.

The thunder and deluge of rain Monday afternoon was responsible for all this trivia. . . and besides, what's a more universal topic of conversation than the weather?

AIRFIELD BUILDER DIES
CANTON, March 10.—(P)—Thomas Emmet Leahy, 67, who supervised construction of the Columbus Army Ordnance Storage Depot, the Barksdale Airfield in Louisiana and several airfields in Texas is dead after a long illness.

THOS. HERBERT PROTESTS ACTIVITIES BY SCHORR
COLUMBUS, March 10.—(P)—Atty. Gen. Thomas J. Herbert, a candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, declared today that Chairman Ed D. Schorr of the State Central committee was supporting another candidate for the nomination and hence "the only honorable course now open to Ed Schorr is to resign."

While Herbert mentioned no name, it is known that Schorr has felt kindly toward the candidacy of Mayor James G. Stewart, a fellow Cincinnati.

U. S. ASKS EIRE TO CLAMP DOWN ON ENEMY SPIES

Action Is Taken To Protect Allied Troop Movements; Policy Is General

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, March 10.—(P)—The United States has asked neutral Eire to close the German legation and the Japanese consulate as an anti-espionage measure to protect Allied troop movements in northern Ireland.

Although a note presented late in February by David Gray, U. S. minister to Eire, contained no ultimatum and no demand for southern Ireland bases, rumors arose that such demands had been made. A "stand to" by Eire's Army was ordered along the Ulster border from February 25 to February 28.

The British government approved the American note, but the United States is handling the job of trying to plug this information outlet to the Axis.

News of the development reached Belfast early this week, but transmission was banned by British censorship until today.

President Roosevelt was reported to have assured Robert Brennan, the Irish minister to Washington, there was no question of force and that the note simply was a request as a matter of urgency that something be done against Axis activities in Eire.

POLICY IS GENERAL
WASHINGTON, March 10.—(P)—Reports that the United States has requested neutral Eire to break communications with the Axis possibly indicated today a new step in Allied efforts to hinder the flow of information and supplies to Germany preparatory to the invasion.

Since 1942, the United States has kept troops in the northern counties and there is a large Allied naval base in northern Ireland.

TWO-WAY SQUEEZE ON IMPORT WHOOPEE

WPB Places Strict Quota on Imported Liquor

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(P)—The government today put a two-way squeeze on imported whoopee.

A War Production Board order placed strict quota limits on imports of rum, gin, cordials and whiskies made from cane sugar in Cuba, Mexico, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands and elsewhere.

Government sources left no doubt the actions were designed to curtail sugar cane distillates for drinking purposes so greater quantities of molasses might be available to produce war-essential industrial alcohol.

U. S. and British Warships May Be Used By Russia

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(P)—More than a dozen British and American surface warships plus a score of other naval craft may be assigned to Russia under the deal now pending for dispersal of the Italian fleet.

The present plan, it was learned today, is to transfer British and American naval units to Russian operation for the duration of the war and leave the Italian fleet relatively intact in the Mediterranean.

Once the Russians have been instructed in the handling of vessels they get, strategic factors indicate they will be put in service on the northern supply route to Murmansk. They can not be moved into the Black Sea because of German control of the eastern Mediterranean. Eventually, if Russia goes to war with Japan they might be employed in the Pacific.

The full story of Italian fleet disposition indicates that most of the confusion and particularly the concern expressed by Premier Badoglio in Italy over what

Death Penalty Demanded For Collett; Defense Says 'Simple Farmer' Tortured

James W. Collett, in the closing hours of his murder trial, was called alternately today a "self-appointed executioner" and a "simple farmer subjected to the most refined torture that has been devised by man."

The state, in its closing summary, demanded that the slight, white-haired hog breeder accused of wiping out the Elmer McCoy family be sent to his death. The defense pleaded that he be spared and returned to a wife "deserving your pity and compassion."

Charles Kirk, summing for the defense, went back to that day in December when Collett confessed under a lie detector he killed McCoy.

"From early in the morning until he confessed," Kirk shouted, "the defendant was tied up to this instrument of torture, this modern rack, this lie detector. He was chained to that chair. Even though he may not have been beaten with a lead pipe, he was subjected to the most refined torture that has been devised by man. That is mental torture. He was grilled from 10:30 in the morning until he signed this confession."

"Eckerman (Lt. George Eckerman of the Toledo crime laboratory) was a man groomed in his art, more than a match for this simple farmer."

Kirk declared the prosecution had seen fit to "arouse your anger over the crime and to transfer it to this defendant."

"Do not let your minds be warped by appeals of hate," he pleaded. "He is a pitiful figure, his life has been one misfortune after another, but the crowning bit of bad luck is to be accused of this crime. If there ever was a figure deserving your pity and compassion, it is the wife of the defendant. Added to the death of her brother and sister-in-law is this most bitter charge that her husband committed that crime. The verdict we think you should return is a verdict of not guilty."

Upon a blackboard he drew a time schedule which, based upon hours listed by state and defense witnesses, he said made it impossible for Collett to have been at the McCoy farm at the hour the state says the family of three was slain.

"The only link by which the state attempts to connect the defendant to this case," he added, "is what it pleases to call a confession."

In its telling arguments in closing its case against James W. Collett Friday, the state demanded that the jury to show justice must send to his death "this self appointed executioner" of the Elmer McCoy family who "has shown the steel nerves of a professional killer."

Such were the words of Simon Leis, state's attorney in the opening argument which occupied nearly an hour. Following Leis, the first argument to the jury for the defense was made by Atty. Charles Kirk. In part of Kirk's talk he used a large blackboard on which he set down figures regarding the distances between Harveysburg in Clinton County

LAST WITNESSES GIVE TESTIMONY IN MURDER CASE

Accused Man's Alibi Hit by Surprise Witness' Claim He Saw Him in Sabina

James W. Collett may learn whether a jury of nine men and three women thinks he shot to death his wife's brother, sister-in-law and niece.

Only closing arguments and Judge Harry M. Rankin's charge to the jury remained before jury deliberation of the case in which the state charges the 60-year-old Clinton County farmer slew the three on a Fayette County farm last Thanksgiving eve.

Collett is charged with first degree murder in the deaths of Elmer McCoy, 58, his wife, Forrest, 64, and their school teacher-daughter, Mildred, 22.

Their bodies were found last Thanksgiving morning.

Collett was called by defense counsel yesterday as their 13th and final witness.

He stammered out the story that he had told his son Thomas, 29, he killed Elmer McCoy. He insisted he confessed because police officials advised him he would fare better than if he denied it.

Seen in Sabina
Prosecutor John B. Hill in cross-examination asked Collett if he had been in Sabina the night of the slayings. Collett said he had not, and was dismissed.

The state immediately called the first of six rebuttal witnesses, in an attempt to tear down Collett's alibi.

R. S. Kirk, a Wilmington farmer and third cousin of Charles Kirk, a member of the defense counsel staff, testified he saw Collett in Sabina, 11 miles from Washington C. H., at 8 P. M. Thanksgiving eve.

Another state witness was Dan Dawson, who sells livestock feed at Harveysburg, who said he saw Collett "jump into his car, start it suddenly, and start toward Wilmington with a sudden burst of speed," at about 7:30 P. M.

Collett had testified he went to the feed store at 8 o'clock but found it closed.

The state had rested its case late Tuesday, after using 19 witnesses and insisting Collett would benefit from the deaths of his wife's brother and family.

Fighting in Italy Subsides as Armies Bog Down in Mud and Bad Weather — Allies Continue To Blast Berlin And Nazi War Plants

(By the Associated Press)

The Germans announced today the loss of Uman, one of their strong bases in the western Ukraine, and the Russians said they were storming the rail junction of Tarnopol and knocking at the outer defenses of the Black Sea ports of Nikolaev and Kherson.

Moscow said the whole German line on a 340-mile front in southwest Russia was folding up as Cossacks rode into seas of mud and water. The army newspaper Red Star said the German retreat was "disorganized".

Uman lies 25 miles east of the Russian Bug River between Vinitsa and Kirovograd. The railroad controls a large chunk of territory on the approaches to Rumania.

WACS PASS NOTES TO NAZI PRISONERS

Eight Soldiers Help Two Hostages Escape

CAMP HALE, Colo., March 10.—(P)—Military disclosures that five WACS exchanged notes with German war prisoners and that eight American soldiers helped two prisoners escape emerged today from investigation of the Germans' flight from Camp Hale with an accused traitor.

An army announcement made clear, however, the notes were not linked with the escape of the Germans who were captured in Mexico February 18 along with Pfc. Dale Maple, 23, of San Diego, Calif.

Maple, a camp guard, was charged with helping the prisoners flee on February 15 and is being held for trial by court martial on military charges similar to civil code treason.

Statements obtained from Maple, the announcement said, involved the other eight soldiers.

IRVIN S. COBB DIES After Long Illness

NEW YORK, March 10.—(P)—Irvin S. Cobb, 67, humorist and writer, died today at his Hotel Sheraton apartment after a long illness.

Cobb had been ill for the past three months suffering from a series of complications including dropsy. At his bedside when the end came was his wife.

Grantland Rice, sports writer and friend of the family, who announced the death, said the funeral would be private but that further plans had not been made.

The man who contributed handsomely to the fame of his native Paducah, Ky., died unable to fill a promise made last December to Kent Cooper, executive director

Yanks Tighten Grip On Bases in Pacific

1,200 Pupils Demand That Principal Stay

PORTSMOUTH, March 10.—(P)—Eight hundred of Portsmouth High School's 1,200 pupils remained away from classes for the second straight day today in a demand that the school board hold a public hearing on its decision not to renew Principal Olin B. Smith's contract.

Meanwhile, the board, meeting informally last night adopted a resolution proclaiming their meetings "always open to anyone who wants to appear for a hearing."

Striking students asserted previously Smith was denied a public hearing after notification by the board two weeks ago that his contract would not be renewed. No reason was given for the action and last Wednesday a small group of pupils walked out of class in protest of Smith's dismissal.

Accurate Bombing By Yanks in Raid Scars Germans

STOCKHOLM, March 10.—(P)—Germans are convinced that American bombers "must have some new weapon" making possible such pinpoint accuracy as the awful destruction of the ball bearing works and tank plants in Erkener, southern suburb of Berlin, a Swede arriving today from the ravaged capital said.

The Erkener works were a target of the American day raiders Wednesday. German dispatches said the bombers had penetrated to the very heart of the city yesterday, taking advantage of thick clouds.

BARONESS SLUGGED BY ZOOT-SUIT NEGRO

Robbery Attack Is Made on New York Avenue

NEW YORK, March 10.—(P)—Baroness Alphonse de Rothschild, widow of the late Baron Alphonse Mayer de Rothschild of the European banking family, was beaten and robbed by a zoot-suited Negro on Park Avenue last night, police disclosed today.

Members of the family reported she still was confined to bed at her Park Avenue home and was under a physician's care. They said she was thrown to the ground and struck on the head during the attack, but was not believed to have been injured seriously.

Her purse, containing $35 in cash and alien registration papers, was taken, police said.

COMMANDOS LAND ON TINY LISSA ISLAND

LONDON, March 10.—(P)—"British and American Commandos" under Capt. Randolph Churchill have landed on Lissa Island off the Dalmatian coast of Yugoslavia, the Berlin radio said today.

Churchill, 32, was the first member of parliament to become a paratrooper. The Allies have been giving aid to Tito's partisans, but there has been no official announcement of the presence of British Commando or American Ranger troops in Yugoslavia.

FARMERS PROTEST OPA OK ON NON-HIGHWAY GAS

TIFFIN, March 10.—(P)—A group of 150 Seneca County farmers formally protested yesterday against an Office of Price Administration ruling requiring township Agriculture Adjustment Administration boards to approve non-highway gasoline rations.

Spokesmen H. H. Fackler of Plymouth and Rolla Myers of Attica told the county OPA board the group considered the AAA check on gasoline needs regimentation.

GAUZE ARRIVES FOR SURGICAL DRESSING UNIT

Memorial Hall Headquarters
Open Again Monday,
Mrs. Braun Says

With the arrival of gauze for 14,000 four by four surgical dressings, the Red Cross unit will open again Monday afternoon, Mrs. Martha Braun, instructor, said today.

Again she renewed her appeal for more women to work on the five week-day afternoons the unit in Memorial Hall is open. Monday through Friday, from 1 to 4 P.M., women are needed to make dressings. On Monday nights from 7 to 10 P.M., the unit is open also.

So far, the unit has completed 80,400 dressings since work began last September—and that's a lot of work. It isn't really hard work to sit and fold the gauze but it does take time. However, most of the regular devotees of the unit keep coming back, for they like the feeling they get after they know they've done something to help win the war.

Mrs. Braun says that now, with the beginning of the War Fund drive, significance of the unit is magnified and she is particularly eager for a capacity attendance.

which counsel will address you ladies and gentlemen concerning the evidence that has been offered here in this case for the purpose of arriving at a true and just verdict, on the issue between the State of Ohio and the prisoner at the bar.

"Before doing so, however, I want to express my appreciation for the courtesy you have shown in this trial. In a case of this kind we must agree that we are confronted with a very, very serious duty. The prosecution is not unmindful of the responsibility resting on our shoulders; that we are about to cast that responsibility from our shoulders to the shoulders of the jury.

"During argument in this case we are not underestimating these tremendous responsibilities you are about to assume in the performance of your duty as citizens. Ladies and gentlemen you have entered upon a performance of your duty with a solemn oath.

"Each one when you were sworn as jurors that you will face your duty and truly try the issue here justly. I admire your courage and know you will accept your duty as jurors.

"The State of Ohio asks but one verdict in this case—murder in the first degree, and withhold from that verdict a recommendation of mercy. The guilt of the defendant has been established beyond the shadow of any doubt. I am sure I am justified in making that statement. This defense is supposedly the defense of an alibi. I have failed to hear one single witness corroborate the story of this defendant. Of course the defendant here has a great interest at stake. He got upon that stand and told members of the jury the story that you heard. He has tried to crucify the sheriff of this community, an honorable man. He has tried to crucify every public official involved in this case in his claim that he was being 'framed.'

YUGOSLAV FORCES KEEP ADVANCING ON GERMANS
LONDON, March 10—(AP)—Yugoslav forces pressing a determined offensive in Slovenia have inflicted severe casualties upon the Germans and are continuing a steady advance, Marshal Tito (Josip Broz) announced today in a communique.

had to justify this unheard of crime? None. Who has lied upon this witness stand? None other than the defendant. You recall the testimony of Mr. Kirk who had known the defendant for a period of 40 years and when he was asked by the State of Ohio in the neighborhood of Sabina on that night? The question was asked four or five different ways. "No sir, I was never there." Then Mr. Kirk took the stand and proved to us that this man on that fatal night, about 8, was driving through Sabina on his way to the Court House.

"He was seen driving hurriedly on the streets of Sabina. The lights were changing from red said this man, he had known him for forty years. He was a cousin to Mr. Kirk, one of the defendant's lawyers. It is the testimony of a man who saw it. This defendant on that night about 8:00 in the village of Sabina was seen driving easterly toward Washington C. H. on his way to commit one of the most atrocious, dastardly murders in the state of Ohio, and he denied it. He had the audacity to come into this court room and say he didn't commit this crime.

"On Thanksgiving morning of last year, ladies and gentlemen, the sun rose as usual. The Elmer McCoy farm was as peaceful as always. The Elmer McCoy family had been recognized as a law-abiding, peaceful, and respectable family of this community. As fine a community as anywhere in the United States. Mother, father and the life of this mother and father were wrapped up in a daughter and if anyone that knew this girl, 22 or 23 years of age, a beautiful child who had grown to womanhood was engaged in teaching of children in one of our public schools in a neighboring locality. That, ladies and gentlemen, the family of Elmer McCoy during his lifetime had accumulated considerable property by hard and honest work. That peaceful morning hunters entered the barnyard of Elmer McCoy and what did they see. They saw a scene that would cause any man to throw up his hands in horror. Here was this young girl shot in the back of the head. She did not have a chance; shot by this defendant, lying alongside of that automobile and you have a picture of that tragic scene which you can look at when you go into the jury room. They then went to the house and what did they see there? They saw an elderly woman sprawled on the porch of her home bathed in human blood, her own blood; not shot once but half a dozen times by this vicious killer. Testimony showed that after he had turned her body over he had fired a final shot into her brain.

Attorney Leis, growing more dramatic as he proceeded, then step by step summed up the evidence which he declared "beyond any reasonable doubt" proved Collett to be a coldly calculating killer.

JURY TO DECIDE FATE OF COLLETT SOON—LATEST WITNESSES ARE HEARD

Collett admitted shooting Elmer McCoy.

2. Testimony from Robert M. Zimmers, a Federal Bureau of Investigation arms expert, who said the bullet which killed McCoy was fired from the same gun as those which killed his wife.

3. That Collett asked Police Lt. George Eckerman of Toledo during questioning preceding the confession if he knew of any recent supreme court action regarding inheritance in case of death of all members of a family and whether Eckerman "thought the McCoy estate would go to his (Collett's) wife."

4. A statement by Howard Hurley, a neighbor, that Collett last summer had remarked "if it weren't for the McCoy girl his son would fall heir to the McCoy estate." Hurley said the statement was made during a discussion of the April death of Mrs. Martha McCoy, mother of Elmer McCoy and Mrs. Collett.

Argument to Jury
In a dramatic hour, Simon Leis summed up the prosecution's case against the accused slayer of Elmer McCoy and his family, and then, striding down upon the flushed 60-year-old hog breeder, shouted:

"I say to you Collett, you went too far. Man, when you killed Elmer McCoy, why didn't you stop? Remember little Mildred. Perhaps she, a little pigtailed girl, sat on your knee."

Mrs. Collett, sitting by her husband, wept bitterly as Leis shouted and whispered, gesticulated and pointed. Her hands trembled and tears washed down her face. Collett, nervous, grew red; and their son, Thomas, stared constantly at the floor.

"The State of Ohio," Leis thundered, "is going to ask but one verdict—murder in the first degree, and we are specifically going to ask you to withhold the recommendation for mercy."

He traced the trial's testimony, coming to Collett's assertion that his confession of killing McCoy was put in his mouth, that he was mistreated.

"He got on that witness stand and told that impossible story, that he was the victim of a frame-up," Leis said. "He's trying to crucify every public official connected with this case. Who lied on this witness stand? None other than this defendant."

He told of the hunters who came upon the bodies of McCoy, Mrs. McCoy and Mildred at their farm home last Thanksgiving Day.

"They saw a scene," Leis said, "there that would cause any man to throw up his hands in horror. There was a young girl shot in the back of the head without a chance. On the porch was an elderly woman, not shot once by this vicious killer, but half a dozen times. Not certain he had killed her, he bent over her and buried into her brain the final shot. You talk about execution. This self-appointed executioner of the family of Elmer McCoy has the steel nerves of a professional killer. The defense goes so far as to accuse innocent people in order to save the worthless life of that defendant."

And then Leis, turning from the jury of nine men and three women, walked toward Collett, pointing a finger, shouting:

"I say to you, Collett, you did go too far."

James N. Linton, chief defense counsel, objected to Leis turning from the jury, and Leis turned away from Collett.

"Greed for money," Leis asserted, "got this man to kill this family, and he recalled testimony that Collett told a friend of his, 'If it weren't for the girl (Mildred McCoy) my son would inherit the estate.'"

Thursday Afternoon
Examination of Collett was resumed by defense counsel when court reconvened at 1:35 P. M. Thursday.

Collett testified that he had left out in his previous testimony that each time he attempted to leave his room he was detained by Eckerman.

He described the reading of the "paper" by Eckerman, and some of the details he said occurred in connection with the typing and signing.

"Had you said you had shot Elmer McCoy before the paper was signed?" he was asked.

"I did not," he replied.

He said Eggert told them to "not forget to put in about the promises and threats" in connection with framing the confession. Collett said he signed the papers after one of the detectives said with reference to the stenographer:

"This girl's got a date, and has waited here a long while, and it won't make any difference about signing it."

"Had you ever heard of the Lewis Road and did you know where it was?" he was asked.

"I had never heard of it and didn't know where it was," he replied.

"I did not say I went by the Lewis Road," he stated, and added that he had never gone by way of the Lewis Road to visit the McCoy's.

He told of being placed in a cell in the Toledo city prison, with no toilet facilities, and later taken to a better cell with toilet, where he went to sleep and did not awake until the next morning.

Upon arousing the morning following signing the paper, he said he exclaimed:

"Oh, what did I do? Did I do something to send me to the electric chair?" He stated he thought he might have been dreaming.

"Eckerman had gained my confidence the day before and I called for him," Collett said.

Collett testified that Prosecutor Hill had told him that "we'd better pick up those guns; Elmer might not be dead and shoot you in the back."

He told of going to search for the guns near his farm, and how he was told that "if you lay the guns on the table before the court you could prove self defense."

"I never told anyone that I had the guns," the witness stated. "They told me to tell the folks at home that I shot Elmer but not the women," Collett testified.

Collett displayed considerable emotion, and choked over telling how his dog greeted him at home. He wiped his red-rimmed eyes and appeared unable to regain his composure that has been characteristic of him most of the time since the triple murder.

He told of talking to his son, Thomas, and how "the boy said something about killing Elmer, and I said yes, but not the women," he half sobbed.

"Slower, Jim," urged Attorney Linton, who had been questioning him.

Collett straightened up as quickly as he had manifested emotion over his dog and son, and described the search for the guns, saying he knew nothing about where they were supposed to be located until he accompanied the officers to the woods near his farm.

"I was told to tell my son that I wouldn't have done this but I wanted more land for you," he testified.

Continuing his narrative, the Clinton Country hog breeder said that Prosecutor Hill came up to him as they were leaving the farm for Washington C. H. after the futile search for the two guns and said:

"I'll put you in the electric chair and I don't care how I do it!"

Regarding the statement made by a state's witness, James Hurley, that he had said if it were not for Mildred, his son would inherit the entire McCoy estate, Collett said Hurley had asked him if his son Thomas did not inherit all of the McCoy land.

Witness said he never owned or had in his possession a .38 calibre pistol or a .32 calibre pistol.

Collett stated he had no information as to how the McCoy family came to their death.

He stood up and showed the jury how high he could raise his right arm, as result of an injured shoulder, and explained that it was necessary to shorten the trigger reach of his shotguns. He said the heavy recoil of the shotguns hurt his neck.

Prosecutor Hill cross-examined Collett at some length, and Collett went on the defensive, his answers being weighed and guarded and his mouth setting in hard lines.

He questioned Collett closely about his alleged trip to Harveysburg and car trouble the night of the murders, and checked the time closely as he led Collett through his activities step by step. There was little variation in Collett's previous story about car trouble.

According to Collett's story, he was home about 9:40 P. M. the night of the murders.

Questioned by Hill, Collett testified that he did not drive on the CCC Highway or through Wilmington the night of the crime; that he did not drive through Sabina toward Washington C. H. that night, and did not stop at the traffic light in Sabina at 8 P. M.

"I said I wasn't there, didn't I?" he shot back at Prosecutor Hill when one of the questions was asked.

He also said the speedometer of his car had never been tampered with.

The state dropped a bombshell in the last few minutes of testimony to climax the trial when Rollo S. Kirk, Wilmington farmer and livestock dealer, said he saw Collett in Sabina heading east toward Washington C. H. about 8 P. M. Thanksgiving Eve.

"Do you know the defendant?" was the first question asked Kirk by Leis, special assistant prosecutor.

"Jimmy?" he answered.

"How long have you known him?"

"About 45 years," Kirk replied.

"Now, Mr. Kirk, calling your attention to the night before Thanksgiving, November 24, last year at about 8 o'clock, where were you at that time?"

"Sabina."

"Where were you going?"

"Home."

"What were you driving in at the time?"

"Buick."

"I will ask you to state whether or not you approached the intersection there where there is a traffic light?"

"Yes, sir."

"And I will ask you to state whether or not at that time you saw the defendant driving his car toward that intersection."

"I was at the intersection waiting on the light to turn to go toward Wilmington and a car came up at a pretty good rate of speed and the light changed and stopped the car coming east on the highway, giving me the light, and I turned to the right toward Wilmington and it was Mr. Collett."

"He was in the car going east toward Washington C. H.?" Leis asked.

"Yes, sir."

"That was about 8 o'clock?"

"As near as I can remember. When I got home it was 25 minutes after eight."

In cross-examination, Linton, defense attorney, asked Kirk why he didn't speak to Collett if he had known him so long.

"Why would I speak to him if the car windows were rolled up and I was making a turn to the right and Jim was on my left?" Kirk said, Kirk asserted he didn't know the make of car Collett was driving and said his only observation was that "it was a green car."

Kirk said he had served as a police officer in Wilmington, Youngstown, Akron and Cleveland.

Dan Dawson, Negro farmer and feed salesman from Harveysburg, testified he saw Collett start his car "with a sudden burst of speed" from Harveysburg about 7:30 P. M. Thanksgiving Eve.

"He started out a little faster than I generally see him drive," Dawson asserted.

Linton asked Dawson if Collett seemed to have any trouble starting his car.

"He didn't have no trouble takin' a-holt," Dawson said.

Edward H. Ellis, Wilmington

garageman, testified the speedometer on Collett's car looked as if it had been tampered with—"the cable had been disconnected from the speedometer," he said.

Pearl McMillan, a Wilmington telephone operator, said a call was recorded from Collett's phone, 6081, to Bloomingburg 2727.

Linton, after the state rested as rebuttal was finished, said he renewed his motion for the "exclusion of all evidence concerning the so-called confession" and the testimony of Collett, Eckerman, Eggert, Miss Kritchfield, Sheriff Icenhower and statements made by Thomas concerning the death of Elmer, referring to the days from Tuesday, November 30 to Saturday, December 4.

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Karl Zeppelin Hitlerian air expert, has exposed to his public the undraped fact that the Nazi retreats on Russian front make it possible for the Red air fleet to attack cities within the Reich—and the German man-in-the-street, his belly already full of Anglo-Yankee bombs, is said to be worried.

Fresh disaster would indeed be heaped on the Fuehrer if the Muscovite bombers should start heavy raiding of eastern Germany in conjunction with the Allied assault from the West and South. Thus far this part of the Reich has been comparatively free of intensive bombing, because of its distance from American and British air bases. Consequently Hitler depends greatly on that area for his war production.

The Germans have plenty of reason for being fearful of death coming out of the eastern skies. The fact that the Russians haven't embarked on a wholesale bombing offensive against Nazi-dom heretofore, doesn't mean they lack air power. On the contrary they possess great aerial strength, but ever since the beginning of the war they've been using their warplanes for the titanic land battles on the long Eastern fighting front.

Several of these engagements are under way now. Marshal Stalin having announced a fresh offensive in the Ukraine last night. The Red armies are making a furious onslaught to cut German Marshal Von Manstein off and either annihilate his forces or batter him down into the crater of the Balkan volcano.

So long as this intensive fighting continues, the Reds likely will want to concentrate their air power on the battle-front. However, an early spring already has turned the steppes into lakes of mud which greatly impedes operations. By April it's possible that there will be a great slackening off of fighting for several weeks, though it's unsafe to assume this in view of the way military traditions are being shattered.

However, if there's a lull it presumably will permit the Russians to participate in the reduction of Hitler's strength by bombing. The Muscovites keep the figures of their aerial strength to themselves, but we know they are capable of hurling a great force at the Nazis as witness their recent attacks on the Finns. Certainly the Red fleet may be expected to do intensive bombings of German bases and communications in Poland and Czechoslovakia.

Moscow approves of the Anglo-American air drive against Germany, but it's interesting to have Lt. General Boris Sterligov remind the Allies again through the newspaper Red Star that Hitler won't fall by bombing alone. It will be, says the general, by the "active operations of a land army of many millions in cooperation with air and sea forces."

U. S. ASKS IRELAND TO CLAMP DOWN ON SPIES FOR TROOP SAFETY

Axis agents and strategic purchases in other neutral countries have intensified lately, but this is the first time that any representations to Eire have been reported. This government apparently is taking the lead, with full British backing.

Negotiations are now being carried on with Spain and Portugal in an effort to choke off the flow of war materials to Germany.

Eire no longer is of such top strategic importance as when the battle for the Atlantic was a touch and go matter, and lack of long range planes and aircraft carriers made it impossible to give air cover to merchant ships all the way across the ocean.

BRICKER'S AIM TO DEFEAT NEW DEAL, HE SAYS

Only Party Split Can Prevent Republican Victory, Ohio Governor Believes

CHICAGO, March 10.—(AP)—Division among party leaders is "the only thing that can prevent a Republican victory" at the polls this year, says Gov. John W. Bricker, a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination.

"But as for me," Bricker said in an address last night, "I am personally more interested in defeating the New Deal and its absolutism than I am in being elected president of the United States."

The three term Ohio governor, declaring "Democrats are coming into the Republican party by the millions," asserted the "basic issue of our time is whether one man or one party shall permanently regiment 130,000,000 Americans, or whether they shall continue to govern themselves through time-tested institutions of self government."

"Our American system was intended to be a government of and by laws. Under the New Deal it has become a government of and by men. During the past 11 years those in power in Washington have permitted this nation to be blown off its course by the winds of absolutism emanating from Europe."

Bricker, who addressed the John Erison Republican League suggested that "positive action" on four fronts is required "if this country is to purge itself of one man or one party rule." He said "needless bureaucracy" must be eliminated through a new administration; policy making should be left to Congress; centralization of power in Washington must be ended, and the people must be "given the facts on every issue" so they can express their will.

U. S.-BRITISH WARSHIPS MAY BE USED BY RUSSIA; ITALIAN FLEET QUESTION

Mediterranean and transferring the other third to Russia for the rest of the war. But as Turkish negotiations dragged, the fleet problem dragged with them and at various times came up for review.

As a result of continued study, the military leaders concluded best results would be had by keeping all the fleet in the Mediterranean and transferring to Russia an equivalent amount of British-American ships. Because of American productive capacity, it appears that most of the transferred ships will be of American origin.

Finally about two weeks ago Russian Ambassador Andrei Gromyko called on the president and asked again about the Russian share of the fleet. It was in comment on this diplomatic inquiry that the president last Friday broke the news that under the surrender terms Russia had a right to her share of Italian naval tonnage.

BADOGGIO HAPPY
NAPLES, March 10.—(AP)—Premier Pietro Badoglio expressed gratification today at Prime Minister Churchill's statement on disposition of the Italian fleet. A spokesman for Badoglio's government said "the incident is closed."

Churchill told Commons yesterday the transfer of warships to Russia from either America or Britain, or from the Italian navy, has been under consideration—but that the question of ultimate disposal of Italy's ships might not be settled until the war ends.

FRAZIER REAMS AT TRIAL HERE

Had Part in Development of Crime Laboratory

Frazier Reams was in Washington C. H. to listen in on parts of the trial of James W. Collett, who confessed the killing of Elmer McCoy in the crime detection laboratory in Toledo, development of which by Detective Eggert, he had supported as prosecutor of Lucas (Toledo) County.

Reams described how he and Eggert had planned the laboratory which is now considered one of the best, if not the best, in the state. He said he always was interested in the major cases that were handled there.

As a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, Reams also took occasion while here to call on as many party leaders as possible and to renew friendships.

One of his ambitions, if he is elected governor, he said, was to establish a state crime detection laboratory which would be available to every city, town and small community in the state.

Words as Campaign Brickbats
There are 10 words which, in this campaign year, should be labeled "Dynamite—Handle With Care," says Dr. Wilfred Funk, the dictionary maker. They are "ghost words" of fuzzy meaning, he contends, and they have caused "more personal bitterness, broken friendships, mayhem, murder, family brawls and bar-room fights than any others in the political lexicon."

The words? Liberty. Equality. New Deal. Communism. Isolationist. Fascism. Capital. Labor. Justice. Democracy.
Dr. Funk is, of course, eminently correct. They are not the only troublemakers, but they are probably the most frequently employed. We had a fine sample of their explosive qualities in the 1940 presidential campaign. We have had even more pointed examples since the war began. And this year, when the campaign really gets hot, supporters of both candidates are going to ride these words to the limit of their flag-waving or vituperative powers.

The eminent lexicographer offers some sensible suggestions. "Ask each member of a group to write down his or her definition of 'democracy,'" he suggests. "You'll be amused at the widely divergent results."

Unfortunately, Dr. Funk's advice will be little heeded, for each of these words has become an emotional, round of personal passions and prejudices. They have reasonably precise and limiting definitions in Dr. Funk's or Mr. Webster's dictionary. But they have come to mean something different to everyone who uses them. Few private arguers have the logical mind or logical training, and few public speakers have the grace, to define terms before using them.

In recent weeks Vice President Wallace has spoken of "American Fascists" in our business world, while Alf Landon has called the New Deal "Fascist." Obviously, both accusations could not be right.

Wallace, it is true, was asked to define a "Fascist" at a subsequent press conference, but his answer did not remotely resemble the dictionary definition.

One could go on down the line. Take "the democracies," which can and do include such divergent governmental systems as those of Russia, China, and all the South American countries in a lump sum, as the occasion and the speaker's purpose warrant.

But what's the use? Deeply as we believe in the power of the printed word, sincerely as we admire, Dr. Funk's observations, we are appalled at the prospect of trying, in a campaign year, to wean Americans away from the practice of using words as brickbats and smoke-screens.

Forest Fire Losses
The Department of Agriculture has begun a vitally necessary campaign to reduce the tremendous destruction caused, year after year, by forest fires. Wood, as we all know, is one of the most critical of war materials. Yet last year the number of forest fires was over 210,000. This figure has been reached and topped for season after season, and the Department estimates that at least 190,000 fires are man-caused, and therefore preventable.

Forest fires affect more than our timber supply. They induce soil erosion and seasonal floods. They destroy wild life. And they complicate the manpower shortage by requiring nearly 1,000,000 man-days each year to fight them.

The rules for preventing this dangerous wastage are the same as ever: Smoke only in safe places, and be sure matches, cigarettes, cigars and pipe ashes are out before you leave them; take care in building and extinguishing camp fires; don't burn brush unless you know how and when to do it.

Washington at a Glance By JACK STINNETT
WASHINGTON—The intensity with which Washington diplomatic and military circles have watched Russo-Finnish peace negotiations might seem out of all proportion to its ultimate effect on the defeat of the Nazis, but that isn't true.
Although the United States never followed the lead of its Allied in declaring war on Finland, it did ban Finnish "propaganda" in this country in 1942. As a result, Hjalmar Procopio, popular Finnish minister here, has had to keep his tongue tied publicly. That was too bad.
A frank discussion of what Finland was up against, the actions of its leaders as well as a consideration of what the Nazis were doing in Finland and how Russia felt about it might have ended hostilities long ago. It has been pretty much a static war until Russia recently unleashed those "bombing raids over Helsinki. But it has been a far more important sector to

Uses of Penicillin and Sulfa Drugs

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
I AM grateful that I have lived long enough to see a dream of my youth become a reality. When I was a medical student and young hospital interne we—my colleagues and I—used to speculate on some chemical which would enter the blood and kill off germs without injuring the body cells. Salvarsan, which came in my time, did the trick for syphilis, but the nearest we came to anything for ordinary germs was mercuriochrome, which we used to give for blood poisoning. It ended the lives of only about twice as many blood poison victims as would have gone ordinarily, and the experience made us suspicious.

Sulfa Drugs
Then came the sulfa drugs with their overwhelming success in just this field, and now a new drug, penicillin, which seems to be in many ways even better than the sulfa drugs. It seems to me a great credit to the medical profession that right at the time they had found a germicidal drug which worked in vivo, when another came along they started with equal enthusiasm to go over all the same clinical investigations on the new one.

We were told a decade ago that no new medical discoveries would be made by accident—only by planned experiment—but the discovery of penicillin was an accident. In 1929 Dr. Alexander Fleming, a London bacteriologist, noticed that some of his plate cultures of the germ staphylococcus (the pus producer) were contaminated by a mold, and that on the plates where the mold grew, the staphylococcus did not grow. Following this up he identified the mold as Penicillium natatum and showed that on both cultures it displayed an inhibitory action on a number of germs both outside and inside the animal body.

Since then researches have advanced our knowledge of this product by leaps and bounds. A suitable method of making a potent extract was found, the proper strength, or dosage, of the drug was determined, its toxic, or dangerous aspects recorded, and its administration was found to be effective only if given by vein, or into the muscle, or topically applied to an open wound. The world generally does not realize how

CHAPTER NINETEEN
As the little circle of light played on the various objects in Syria Verne's living room, Argus whistled. "Some spot," he murmured admiringly. "Look at that painting over there." He concentrated his flash on a huge canvas in a heavy gilt frame. It was a Van Gogh. The rug beneath their feet felt thick and soft. Built-in bookcases lined one end of the room, reaching from the ceiling down to about four feet from the floor. There were bookcases also on either side of the French windows.
In one corner, its back and one side surrounded with books was a satiny, square mahogany table. On it was a telephone. To the left was a lamp. In the space directly over the smooth surface and set in the bookcase was a machine that looked like a radio except that it had no dial.
"According to the diagram in the paper," said Argus, "Syria was found lying face down at the base of that table, with the telephone in her right hand."
"It gives me the creeps!" whispered Ellen, her teeth chattering.
Argus crossed the room and turned on the lamp. Soft light filled the room. Ellen looked around.
"That better?" Argus asked.
"Yes," Ellen agreed. "What a lovely apartment! I'd imagined Syria as living in a modern sort of place with white rugs and lots of mirrors. But this room is so comfortable, so well done. The pieces here are the sort of person of excellent taste would spend years in collecting."
"It is out of character at that. I'll lay you a bet that Syria didn't furnish the place herself. If she had there'd be more chaise longue!"
"Look at these porcelain on the mantelpiece," Ellen picked up two figurines, a shepherd and his shepherdess. She turned one of them over. Stamped on the bottom was the word "Limoges."
Then the detective directed Ellen to "start over there by the entrance to this room and pretend you've just come home. You hear the phone ringing. You come over and answer it. Just as you get the receiver to your ear there's a shot. You fall down at the base of this table. Got it?"
"Yes, but I don't like it very much."
Ellen followed instructions. Argus watched her carefully. She stepped off the distance from the door to the telephone and picked up the receiver.
"Bang!" exclaimed Argus.
Ellen fell to the floor.
"Stay where you are a minute, will you, darling? Anything strike you as strange about that shot?"
"It was an exceptionally peaceful bang."
"No, seriously. I'll show you what I mean. This table is in a corner, flush against the wall and the bookcases, which surround two sides. To the left is the lamp. Now, the only way to answer that phone was the way you did—walk directly up to it and pick it up."
"Yes, but—"
"Stand in front of this table again and hold that receiver in your hand for a second," Ellen did so. "Remember that Syria was shot through the chest as she stood there. Look around you. Where could the murderer have stood in order to have shot her through the chest? You're facing the bookcase and this built-in machine that looks like a radio but which is an air-conditioner. To your right are more bookcases. To your left is a lamp and a chair. From the position the body was in when she was found, we know that some one must've been standing directly in front of her. But where?"
"That's right. Unless the murderer was standing on the table. There's no room any place else."
"Exactly. And the murderer wasn't standing on the table because the angle at which the bullet entered the body shows that. So that leaves two other possibilities. Either there must be a hidden panel behind the bookcase through which the murderer fired, or some sort of mechanical gadget must've been hidden behind the books or—wait a minute—"
"But how—if it was some mechanical device, how would the murderer know that the bullet would hit Syria?" Ellen asked.
"I've got it! Yep! That must be it."
"What must be it?"
"This air-conditioning machine. Look at these little holes in the grillwork." The holes were about half an inch in diameter and formed a circular pattern on the face of the machine. "They serve as ventilators and they're just about the right size for a bullet to pass through."
"You mean—"
"I mean that I'll find a gun inside this machine. It's in the proper position, just over the table, so that any one picking up the phone would come in direct range of a shot."
"But even if that were true, I still don't see how the murderer could be sure any one would be around when it went off," Ellen declared.
Argus didn't reply. He was dusting some powder over the top of the air-conditioner. He waited a second and then blew off the excess.
"Is that how you find fingerprints?" Ellen asked, following the operation with rapt attention.
"If there are any. I brought it along just in case."
"Are there?" Argus inspected the surface carefully through a pocket magnifying glass.
"No. I hardly expected to find any. I wonder if there's a screwdriver in the joint. Take a look in the kitchen, will you, darling?"
Ellen returned a few minutes later with a small screwdriver and a pair of pliers. Argus was squinting into the ventilating holes, one after another.

NEW INDUSTRIES EYING OHIO MAY HELP CED HERE

County Committee To Meet Again Soon To Plan for Post-war Cushion

The group of Fayette County businessmen—and that includes farmers—now working out plans to soften the jolt that most believe is inevitable after the war as a county committee for Economic Development (CED) today could take some comfort from the report of W. H. Hampton, chairman of the Ohio Development and Publicity Commission that many industries have shown interest in moving into Ohio after the war.

Whether the county CED would make any attempt to attract any of them to Washington C. H., or the county's villages, remained conjectural, but loomed as a possible subject for detailed discussion at its next meeting.

The primary purpose of the CED, under the chairmanship of Ray Brandenburg, as brought out at the initial meeting about two weeks ago, is to make a survey of the city and county to determine the present economic status of the people and then, in the light of pre-war conditions, determine the outlook for the post-war period.

Early discussions of the committee passed up almost entirely any consideration of new industries. The implication, however, was that this phase of development would be taken up later, possibly by a revived Chamber of Commerce, if the CED found it necessary to encourage industrial expansion to provide jobs for returning service men and women and workers in war industries left jobless by cessation of hostilities.

It was emphasized at the first meeting that the survey's purpose was to be the basis for making plans to provide post-war jobs here.

The CED here, it was explained, is only one unit of a nationwide organization dedicated to balking a slump such as that which hit the country after the last war.

The next meeting of the county CED probably will be called next week, the chairman said. The consensus at the initial meeting was that the first phase of the work—the surveys—could and would be completed in "not more than 30 days." With that data as a guide, the chairman intimated the committee then would begin to lay its definite post-war plans.

Already one of the nation's most highly developed industrial states, Ohio through the commission has distributed a booklet to show the state's advantages in natural resources, manpower and transportation.

Hampton said he would meet representatives of some of the potential Ohio industries next week.

He explained the commission was prepared to furnish information on available plant sites, to help plan for their best utilization and to give reports on availability of water, gas, electricity and railway service.

Dr. John Cunningham, dean of the Ohio State University College of Agriculture said a chemurgic committee would be named soon to function in the same capacity as an industrial subcommittee appointed by Hampton yesterday. Members named to this industrial committee include: C. B. Morin, Ohio Power Company, Canton, and H. C. Atkinson, Akron, Canton & Youngstown railroad, Akron.

One of those things that happen only in the movies happened during the making of "Gung Ho!" the action drama opening Sunday at the State Theater, and it happened with plenty of witnesses. In front of the Marine's post exchange, Ray Enright was directing a scene with Grace McDonald and Dave Bruce.

The picture, produced for Universal by Walter Wanger at the Marine Base and Camp Pendleton, is the story of Lieut. Col. Evans P. Carlson's historical raid on Jap-held Makin Island.

Lieut. Col. Carlson, as technical and story consultant, was watching a scene in rehearsal when three Marines stepped up to him with snappy salutes.

Then came one of the most enthusiastic "family" reunions. The three Marines were among Carlson's Raiders in the Makin Island assault, but he had not seen them since he left them in the Solomons last April.

He knew them by their first names, almost shook their arms off and patted each on the back. They were Technical Sergeant Charles Sewell, Glendale, Calif.; Master Technical Sergeant Robert E. Marks, Boston, Mass., and Corp. William Dickerson, Austin, Tex. The three were radio communications men during the raid and right in the thick of the fighting. OF HUMAN INTEREST At The War Front

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Naples, March 10—(P)—Into the legends of lost battalions were written today the heroic but hopeless fight of two battalions of United States Fifth Army Rangers who spearheaded an attack out of the Anzio beachhead on Cisterna Di Littoria early on the morning of last Jan. 30.

Trapped when they reached the village on the Apennine Way at the base of the Colli Laziali Hills, none but a handful ever have come back from the attack. The Germans announced at the time that about 100 were killed and the remainder, some 950, were taken prisoner.

The Rangers gave up only after they had fired their last round of ammunition and thrown their last grenade against vastly superior German forces they encountered after they had infiltrated four miles through enemy lines in a stirring night and day action.

"There will be a sequel to it," vowed a few stragglers who came back to tell their story.

Corp. Ben. W. Mosier of Astabula, O., one of the few who returned, told a Stars and Stripes correspondent that during their night infiltration through German lines they were close enough to hear the crews giving orders in German.

"When it got light," Mosier said, "we saw one big building ahead and trees all around it. Behind us there was one tank and when we saw it we cheered. We thought it was supporting us. We couldn't see it very well—and then it opened up on us and we knew what it was. "It kept moving across a field toward us, firing 20-millimeter shells pointblank. We scattered and hit the dirt."

NOT SO ROUGH

A MUSTANG FIGHTER BASE IN ENGLAND, March 10—(P)—Mustang fighter pilots who covered the second wave of bombers hitting Berlin today reported they saw only a half dozen German fighters, and shot down three of these.

The first report of pilots at this base said the defense was not nearly so intense as that in the battle of Berlin two days ago. Visibility was clear over the German capital. The pilots said the hardest part of their job was the six hour, 1200-mile round trip.

Lt. Col. George R. Bickell, 27, of Nutley, N. J., who led the stout Mustangs on both Berlin raids, said:

"We were with the bombers for 40 minutes and saw very little stuff and no more than half a dozen enemy aircraft. It was nowhere near as rough as the other time. For us today, there wasn't anything to it."

37,853 YANKS DIE IN WAR UP TO DATE

Total Casualties Are 162,282
Stimson Says

WASHINGTON, March 10—(P)—American casualties in this war so far total 162,282, of whom 37,853 are dead.

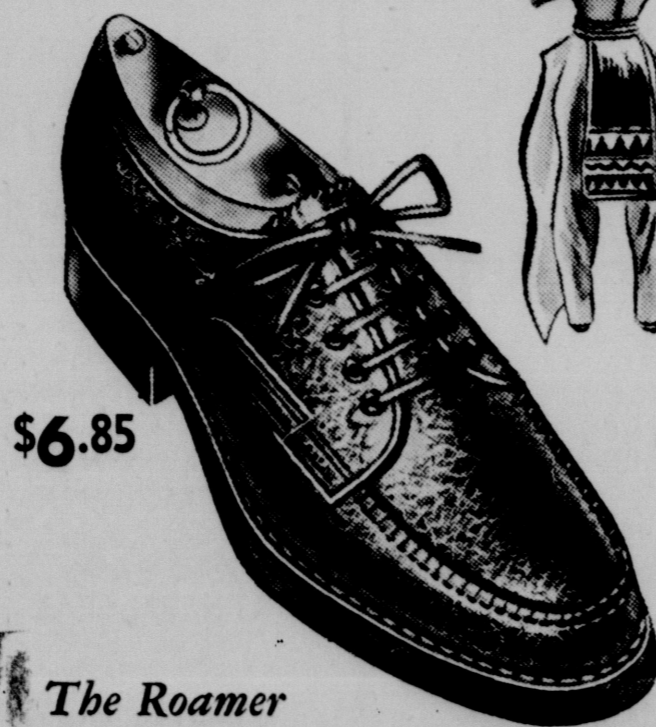

Secretary of War Stimson, at a news conference today, announced that army casualties (as of Feb. 23) totaled 121,458. Of this number, 20,592 were killed, 47,318 wounded, 26,326 are missing and 27,222 are prisoners of war.

The latest Navy total is 40,824, made up of 17,261 killed, 9,910 wounded, 9,239 missing and 4,414 prisoners of war. These figures cover the Marine Corps and Coast Guard as well as the Navy proper. Of the total casualties the Navy has suffered 27,383, Marines 12,986 and the Coast Guard 455.

Stimson said that of the 47,318 Army wounded, 25,291 have been returned to duty or discharged. Of the 27,222 prisoners, Stimson said, the enemy has reported 1,673 have died of disease in prison camps. These deaths, Stimson commented, occurred mostly in Japanese-occupied areas and the total probably is larger than reported by the enemy.

With a Buckeye In Congress...

By CLARENCE J. BROWN
Member of Congress, 7th Ohio District

A conference committee has worked out the difference between the House and Senate on the Soldiers' Vote Bill, and the compromise measure is expected to be approved some time this week. Final draft of the bill will be almost a complete victory for the "state ballot" forces, and is thought to be so drawn as to eliminate any question of constitutionality. Under the compromise only state ballots can be used for armed service voting in the United States. Those with the armed forces overseas must also use state ballots except under the following conditions: (1) The governor of the state in which the voter resides certifies before August 1st that the federal ballot is acceptable and will be counted under the law of that particular state. (2) The individual overseas desiring the federal ballot takes oath that he applied for a state ballot before September 1st, and that it had not been received by October 1st. The state ballot plan will permit service men and women to vote for every candidate on the ballot, from president down to coroner. The federal ballot would permit voting only for president, senator and representative by writing in the names of the candidates.

Another real clash between the Congress and the President is developing over the growing practice of officials of the Roosevelt administration refusing to testify before congressional investigating committees, under the excuse that such testimony would bare confidential relations with the President, or would not be in the public interest. Some of those refusing to testify have specifically stated they were doing so under direct orders of the President. Congress has the constitutional power to conduct investigations and to compel the appearance and testimony of witnesses before its committees. Without such power Congress would be helpless to obtain information necessary for the proper functioning of government, or to investigate violations of the law. Committees of both the Senate and House are now considering the filing of contempt charges against several high administration executives. Conviction would carry either fine or imprisonment, or both.

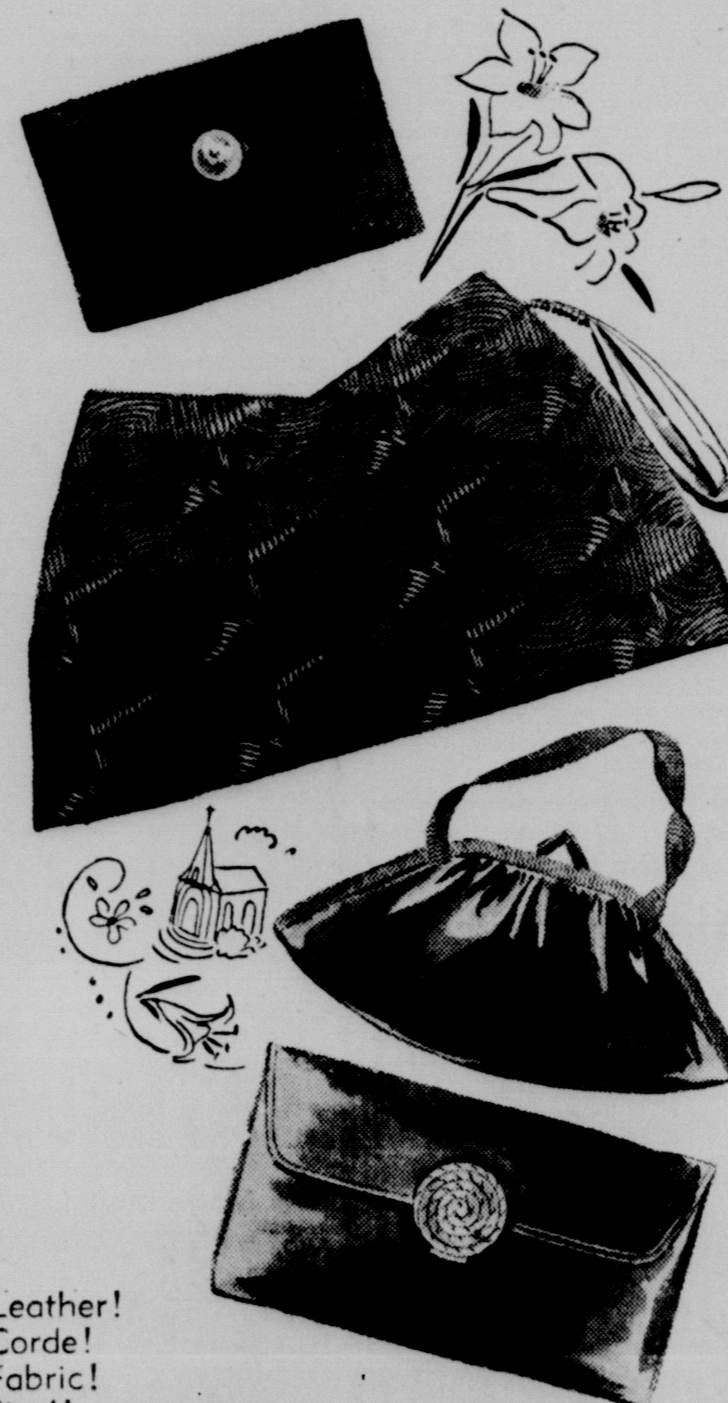

Representative Albert Engle of Michigan, the one man investigating committee, has called attention of the Congress and the country to the fact that the gigantic Pentagon building, which is the largest office structure in the world, actually cost eighty-six million dollars instead of the thirty-five million authorized by Congress. The additional fifty-one million dollars was taken from funds Congress had appropriated for fighting and winning the war, without its knowledge, consent or approval. The building was erected under the supervision and direction of Brehon B. Somervell, then a brigadier general. Somervell is also the gentleman responsible for spending one hundred and thirty million dollars on the Canol oil project in Northern Canada, which has become almost a national scandal. He is considered a protégé of Harry Hopkins, under whom he served as WPA director in New York. He is now a lieutenant general, evidently winning his promotion because of his spending proclivities.

A congressional study of the administration's national housing program is also under way, and many shocking situations are coming to light. Here in Washington there have been completed, in the past few months, six huge housing projects owned by the Defense Homes Corporation, a government controlled and financed organization. Most of these projects have not been in use over six months and outside work, such as grading, etc., is not yet completed. The total cost was more than fifty-three million dollars. Yet the government has already offered them for sale to private interests at 75% of their cost, or at a loss of thirteen million dollars, with no takers thus far. The chief selling obstacle is the contention by private business interests that the government structures cost two or three times as much to build as similar buildings would cost if erected by private enterprise. For instance, the government fixes the cost for each room at Naylor Gardens as $1,920. Investigators insist the actual cost was $2,235 per room. Fairfax Village, a similar privately constructed project, cost but $1,162 per room. At McLean Gardens the government reports its cost at $2,600 per room. Investigators claim the actual cost was $3,280 per room. Keyword Gardens, a similar project erected by private owners, cost $1,250 per room. The differential between government and private construction costs on the other projects run approximately the same. And still there are many, both within and without the administration, who are still attempting to destroy free enterprise and institute government ownership and control in its place.

son and Congressman Fish of New York, as inserted in the Congressional Record last week, discloses that practically no Negro troops, outside of one small air squadron, have been assigned to combat duty overseas. Instead, most of the troops have been used purely for service assignments. As a result a number of national Negro organizations are protesting the discrimination. Representative Fish, who commanded a Negro fighting unit in World War No. 1, has, in speeches on the floor of the House, pointed out the fine and distinguished record colored combat troops have made in past wars, and has demanded that better and more dignified use be made of the service of Negro patriots in this war.

Elmwood Aid Society Meets On Thursday

Thirty-five members of the Elmwood Aid Society were entertained at the home of Mrs. Floyd Tracey, Thursday afternoon for the March meeting to which three guests were invited. They were Mrs. Charles Allemang, Mrs. Wert Wilson and Mrs. Albert Backenstoe.

Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Backenstoe were taken into the society as new members at this meeting.

The business meeting was presided over by the president, Mrs. Floyd Tracey. During the course of the discussion, it was announced that a $50 war bond had been purchased during the past month. It was voted upon at this time to give a substantial contribution to the Lion's Club Canteen at the Bus Station and also to the Red Cross during their next drive here.

Mrs. Foster Winkle gave an interesting and instructive Red Cross reading, after which Mrs. S. E. Simmons and Mrs. William Clark conducted hilarious contests.

The hostess and her committee served an appetizing salad course late in the afternoon and a St. Patrick's Day color scheme was carried out. Assisting Mrs. Tracey were Mrs. Claude Zimmerman, Mrs. William Clark, Mrs. Foster Winkle, Mrs. Carroll Williams and Mrs. S. E. Simmons.

The U. S. Army Air Forces had a total of only 159 four-engined bombers on December 7, 1941.

Fortnightly Men's Night Party Held At Country Club

One hundred and twenty members and guests of the Washington Country Club assembled in the spacious club lounge, Thursday evening, for their fortnightly Men's Night dinner and evening of cards.

Hosts for the St. Patrick's Day party were Messrs. Wert Shoop, Hoy O. Simons, F. E. Hill and J. J. Kelly and they greeted each guest and members at the door and presented them with a shamrock boutonniere.

A delicious turkey dinner was served at several large tables in the lounge by the club hostess, Mrs. Hazel Devins and her assistants. Throughout the attractive rooms a profusion of St. Patrick's Day decorations were greatly admired.

At the close of the congenial and pleasurable dinner hour, Mr. Ray Brandenburg ably presided as toastmaster and introduced Mr. Don Kelley of Hamilton, Irish tenor who presented artistically a group of old favorites. He was resoundingly received by the guests and members. Next on the program was Mr. Walter Shoop, accordion soloist from Sabina and his program of music was also well received.

The remainder of the evening was spent in the usual games of cards.

St. Patrick Theme Carried Out at Luncheon - Bridge

Hostesses for the fortnightly luncheon-bridge party held at the Washington Country Club, Thursday afternoon were chairman, Mrs. Sam Parrett and assisting were Mrs. Ottie Morrow and Mrs. Walter Jones.

Thirty-five members of the club assembled at one o'clock in the spacious club house for the serving of a most delicious and appetizing luncheon by the club hostess, Mrs. Hazel Devins. The tables were cleverly centered with small potted plants decorated with green crepe paper which were later presented as bridge prizes, and a profusion of green candles and small favors were attractively placed around the rooms.

During the afternoon of bridge prizes were awarded to Mrs. Stanley Paxson, Mrs. M. J. Hagerty and Mrs. W. L. O'Brien.

Mrs. Parkin Entertains Thursday Kensington Club

Seventeen members and one guest, Mrs. Will Stinson, of the Thursday Kensington Club were entertained at the home of Mrs. George B. Parkin for a delightful and congenial afternoon of sewing and visiting, as is the usual custom of the Kensington clubs.

Late in the afternoon, the hostess invited her guests to the dining room where, at one large table and two smaller ones, a dainty and appetizing dessert course was served. Centering each prettily appointed table was a bowl of attractive spring flowers, their dainty colors adding much to the graciousness of the social hour.

"DON'T SAY IT"
If someone did something you didn't approve,
And you feel you should chasten;
Don't say it.
A thought like that is better unsaid,
Because there are some who won't take it.

If she has a manner of which you don't like,
And you feel you should change it: Don't say it.
There are a good many people, who take it to heart,
And when it's summed up, they can't make it.

If a friend heard something, a scandal, perhaps,
And you want to repeat it: Don't say it.
It may be true, and yet it may not; Quite possibly they cannot help it.

It's a bit of advice, which I pass on to you;
If it does one no-good: Don't say it.
For if the story came around a month from today;
It would be so enlarged, you'd not know it.

There are enemies who lurk at the front of our minds;
If you have a grave secret, Don't say it.
For a secret can't do any definite harm;
If there is no-one to spread it.

War Fund for $28,500 Starts
Here Next Sunday
Afternoon

Two organizations here—one a men's group and the other a women's club—endorse the Red Cross War Fund drive for $28,500, to begin here Sunday.

Herbert E. Wilson, commander of Paul H. Hughes Post 25 expresses the sentiment of all veterans of World War I as he says: "We fully appreciate the unique and indispensable service of the American Red Cross. Many of our members had the opportunity of seeing this great organization at work on the battlefields in the last war. Most of us have sons on the fighting fronts in this war. We know the American Red Cross is with them in sickness or in health, on the field, in the hospital, and leave centers. It feeds, comforts, houses, and entertains them when a furlough must be spent in a strange city; gives them comfort articles when they return from battle and performs untold services to American troops. The American Red Cross is our helping hand reaching out to them, because it is supported by our contributions."

"The American Legion wholeheartedly endorses the American Red Cross and urges every member to support the War Fund drive during the month of March. We appeal also to the families of men now in service and can personally assure them that their contributions to the American Red Cross War Fund will go a long way toward building morale and relieving suffering in the armed services."

"Let's keep the Red Cross by his side so that he will return soon."

Members of the Business and Professional Women's Club here are cooperating with the Red Cross War Fund drive in every way possible, Miss Helen Slavens, president, has urged these busy women to give both time and money to help raise the $28,500 needed here.

Miss Slavens says:

"The war spotlight will focus on the American Red Cross in March, which has been designated by President Roosevelt as the month for its third annual war fund drive."

"In order to keep the Red Cross flag flying on the fighting and home fronts, this war fund quota of $28,500 must be met. It is the responsibility of every American citizen to respond to this current appeal in every possible way and to the greatest possible extent."

"Red Cross obligations, delegated by the Congress of the United States, will continue even after war ends for it serves as the connecting link between members of the armed forces and their families, and is responsible for ex-servicemen."

"The Red Cross is depending upon our support to carry on its humane tasks. Members of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc. in contributing their full share to this fund, will be helping the Red Cross to serve humanity."

TINY SUBS SCORE FOR ALLIES! Undersea Craft, Modelled After Japs' Doom Tirpitz

By B. C. Wood, London Sphere; Copyright, King Features Syndicate.

DEATH FOR TIRPITZ—A British artist's version of the submarine attack on the battleship Tirpitz in the North Atlantic.

Detail of Nazi ship's attack on the British submarine. (For military reasons) isn't.

By JERRY DREYER

Central Press Correspondent

NEW YORK—The mighty 41,000-ton Nazi super-battleship Tirpitz lies at the bottom of a Norwegian fjord, crippled and unable to prowl the North Atlantic for the merchantmen that are carrying the supplies used to blast Hitler out of his fortress. And it took a David to knock out the Goliath.

Nature was with the Germans when they berthed the Tirpitz in the northern waters to protect her against attack by the Allies. Speedy bombers, after numerous bombings, reported that their tactics were hit-or-miss. It was impossible for them to bomb accurately because of the steep mountains rising from the edge of the waters. With the battleship snuggled against these mountains, point-blank assaults would be suicide.

The Nazis boasted that the ship also was safe from attack by surface craft—The chances of attacks being sighted after entering the 60-mile-long fjord would provide them plenty of time to set in operation their defenses.

A Serious Threat
The Tirpitz must be sunk or crippled, the British Navy insisted. While it was in operating condition it was a serious threat to Allied shipping in the North Atlantic.

There was only one way to push the attack home, they reasoned—by submarine. That, too, was ruled out after some thought. Undoubtedly, the Nazis had installed strong anti-submarine and torpedo nets. They were stymied.

The Japs provided the solution. It was the midge sub they used during their sneak attack on Pearl Harbor that provided the clue. Underwater craft that size stood a reasonably safe chance of avoiding detection than their larger brothers. Information the United States obtained from study of one of the tiny craft captured on Dec. 7, 1941, was sent to the British, who copied and improved.

The British government has just revealed full story of the attack. A group of the especially-built subs manned by carefully selected three-man crews were responsible for the extensive damage done to the raider, enough damage, it is claimed, to keep the ship out of the water for a long time to come.

Before the nifty British sailors had the opportunity to send their warheads into the vitals of the ship, they had to negotiate 1,000 miles of open water before reaching Alten fjord. Then came the dangerous task of creeping through the anti-submarine devices without being detected. It is not revealed how they sneaked past the nets.

Either of two ways was possible—to sneak under the nets or wait until they were opened to permit a German ship to enter. In any event, the commander of the submarine force proceeded cautiously until, according to charts, he figured they were close enough for a quick look-see through the periscopes. Motors just idling, two long steel fingers emerged from the sea.

Their deductions were correct: the Tirpitz was 200 yards—dead ahead, at point blank range. Well trained for the task, not a motion was lost as torpedoes were fired and found their marks to bring to an almost successful conclusion their long months of training. The warheads struck home with tremendous explosions, but before the sub commanders could leave the scene the Nazis brought them to the surface, probably with depth charges, and most of the crews and their commanders were taken prisoner, but not before they scuttled the tiny craft.

Information available concerning the small subs shows that equipment was reduced to barest essentials.

There are two torpedo tubes. When one is fired, adjustments of trim must be made to counter the loss of balance. Two propellers are provided, one on the port side and the other carried on the starboard. These, incidentally, provide an emergency steering method should the steering apparatus be damaged by depth charges.

—Spying— On Sports

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP)—Some Denver, Colo., boys in a naval unit in the South Pacific have decided they want to sponsor teams in the "Old Timers" Baseball Association this year and will have a league all their own, with teams named after the various ships. . . All they'll get out of it will be weekly reports from Jack Carberry, Denver Post sports editor and the old timer behind the "old-timers," but it gives some idea of how a baseball game can take hold if it is given a chance. The men planning for baseball's future would do well to take a second glance at this setup.

The "Old Timers" are some 500 men who once played on uniformed baseball teams and who are willing to put up a buck apiece to foster baseball competition among boys from 11 to 17 years old. . . This year they'll have about 1,300 boys competing in 120 leagues in Denver and suburban Englewood. . . That's more than double last year's total and it's a good example of how many potential players and fans there are if somebody will take the trouble to turn his attention to the national game. . . Skipping most of the details, the oldtimers' setup merely gives boys a chance to play baseball, with adequate fields, equipment and coaching, promises no rewards other than trophies for city championship teams and possibly state school scholarships for a few outstanding boys. . . It also prevents abuses by "sponsors" and gives every boy an equal chance. . . as Carberry explains: "A kid in this league plays to play baseball—nothing else." . . judging by the figures, nothing else is necessary.

Couldn't Pin Him Down

One of the good yarns we've heard about bowling is related by Rex Hess, of the Mansfield, Ohio News-Journal. . . It seems Hess went to interview a kegler who had just bowled a perfect game and found he had started celebrating before he started bowling. . . In fact, the interviewer explained, he had stopped at that place across the street for a few quick ones and when he got into action he could see three balls rolling down the alley toward 30 pins. . . "All I did was keep on rolling them," the bowler explained. "I figured that any guy who couldn't knock down ten pins out of 30 with three balls must be drunk."

Cleveland Rams Are Coming Back To Pro Football

CLEVELAND, March 10.—(AP)—The Cleveland Rams will be back in the National Football League in 1944—and to make this definite, Chili Walsh, coach and vice-president, is offering $50 rewards for information leading to the "capture" of players.

Walsh conferred with Capt. Dan Reeves, Rams' owner stationed at the Army Air Depot in Rome, N. Y., and announced he would "pay $50 for information leading to the capture and contracting of any football player who is available and eligible under league rules, and who will remain with the club for at least three regularly scheduled games."

Walsh has scouts in every section of the country and has sent questionnaires to approximately 1,000 prospective players.

Most of the Rams' players were drafted by other league teams for use in 1943, but they will return to the club this year if not caught in the Selective Service draft.

WAR DIMS HOPES OF DODGERS

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP)—With infielder Billy Herman sailing away to join the Navy and pitcher Ed Head marching off in a soldier suit, the Brooklyn Dodgers' National League pennant aspirations have suffered a severe relapse almost on the eve of their first spring training drills.

Deacon Branch Rickey broke the news to the Gowanus Faithful yesterday and added that pitcher Bill Lohman had informed him he would take his army physical next Monday.

Herman, the cornerstone of the infield, told Rickey he had been accepted for service and soon would be in the Navy and Head wrote from Shreveport, La., he had been examined and accepted by the army.

The Brooks have 18 experienced men definitely set to open camp at Bear Mountain, N. Y., next Wednesday and 15 other in the "doubtful" class.

Other news from the baseball front included:

National League

BOSTON.—Bob Quinn has discovered that he "gave" Columbus $7,500 for outfielder Chet Wiecek. He has learned the player whom he drafted from the American Association Club is in the army.

PHILADELPHIA.—With signing of outfielder Buster Adams, the Blue Jays report 16 in the fold. Herb Pennock announced signing of George Gasdaskie, 18-year-old Bethlehem, Pa., high school boy, to be sent to the Bradford, Pa., farm in the Pony League.

CHICAGO.—First baseman Phil Cavaretta informed club officials that he has been called up for army physical today at Milwaukee. If Cavaretta is accepted, the Cubs will have to depend on either Heinz Becker or the veteran Jimmie Fox.

BROOKLYN.—In addition to the news on Herman, Head and Lohman, Rickey announced that Lloyd Waner had been reinstated and that he had given permission to catcher Mickey Owen to stay at his Springfield, Mo., farm during the early days of the training season.

American League

St. Louis.—Outfielder Frank Demaree, recently released by the Cardinals, signed by the Browns.

CHICAGO.—Outfielder Thurman Tucker announced he had passed his physical examination and pitcher Al Epperly, acquired in the baseball draft, said he would either stay on his farm or be in the armed service. Pitchers John Harvey and Charles Graumann and outfielder pitcher Ed Carnett signed contracts.

DETROIT.—Pitchers Hal Newhouse and Zeb Eaton took part in early training workout at Evansville, Ind., in freezing weather.

PHILADELPHIA.—Athletics reported 26 signed and only two holdouts, outfielder Bill Burgo and pitcher Luke (Hot Potato) Hamlin. Connie Mack said Bobo Newsom not considered holdout as he was just seeing if he could get in shape to pitch.

Ohio State Baseball League May Go With Only Four Teams

COLUMBUS, March 10.—(AP)—The Class D Ohio State baseball league will operate this year with only four clubs if necessary. President Joe Donnelly said today in calling a schedule meeting here for Sunday, March 19.

Donnelly said Springfield, Middletown, Zanesville and Lima would be definite starters, and that the meeting would determine whether Newark and Marion also would play.

Both have completed organization and are seeking major league backing, which Donnelly reported might be arranged.

Of the four certain starters, only Lima has been unable to arrange an agreement with some big league club. Springfield will work with the New York Giants, Middletown with the Boston

Americans through the Louisville Colonels and Zanesville will have player support from the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Donnelly said Frank M. Colley, public relations director of the league, was completing two schedules for approval. One calls for a 130-game schedule if six clubs participate, the other for 126 games if only four take the field.

In either event, Donnelly said, the season will open on Tuesday, May 2, and close on Labor Day, Sept. 4.

Pure Oilers Protest Win By Mt. Sterling Bowlers

The top spot Mt. Sterling bowlers took three games from the Pure Oilers in a match that went into the record under a Pure Oil protest in which exception was taken to what was described as a rectification of the handicap allowed the Mt. Sterling team.

The dispute came about when the handicapper said the Mt. Sterling team had been given too low a handicap, the result of faulty addition in computing it.

Jeffersonville's Ringers, staging somewhat of a comeback after a slump that took them out of the lead, made a clean sweep of their series with the Melvin Stone Crushers in a regular Men's City League match on the Main Street alleys Thursday night.

The Coca Colas took the last two games of their match from the Producers after having dropped the opener by 100 pins and Pennington's Bakers won the first but went into a tail spin and lost the last one.

Big Ten Coaches For Expansion

CHICAGO, March 10.—(AP)—Western Conference football coaches are in favor of an expanded grid program at their schools after the war.

Meeting yesterday they recommended to the athletic directors that the conference, in addition to drawing up varsity football schedules, also arrange a program for "B" teams and 150 pound elevens, as well as a limited schedule for freshman teams.

Their proposals will be given to the directors at a joint meeting today.

GRAIN MARKET NEWS SUMMARY

CHICAGO, March 10.—(AP)—Oats and barley were strong on the grain market today. May oats moving to a new seasonal high, in reflection of a good cash demand for both grains. A slump in the movement of corn from the country has caused an expanded demand for other feed grains from feed manufacturers.

The May rice contract jumped more than a cent at 1:11, largely on short-covering by local traders, and deferred deliveries made fair gains. Surrounding strength was reflected in wheat, which was ahead fractionally, but interest in the bread cereal continued light and the number of transactions was small.

At the close wheat was 1/4-1/2 higher, May $1.71 1/2, oats were up 1/4-1/2, May $1.24 1/2, and barley was up 1/4-1/2, May $1.24 1/2.

DETAILS WORKED OUT NOW IN RED CROSS WAR FUND

Victory Sing Drive Opener Will Begin Sunday at 2:30 P. M.

Final details for the Victory Sing opening of the $28,500 Red Cross War Fund drive here Sunday at 2:30 P. M. in WHS auditorium, are worked out now, John Leland, campaign manager, said today.

The climax of the sing will be Sgt. Ted Yoakum, convalescing from wounds received in North Africa, who is scheduled to speak about his experiences. Sgt. Yoakum will probably speak after the "This Is Worth Fighting For" number in the sing, directed by Paul Fitzwater.

Leland will speak briefly to explain what the drive means and what the money contributed will buy.

After the sing, all township and ward workers will go to 14 separate school rooms—one for each township and one for each ward—to get materials for solicitation. Room numbers will be designated on the backs of the programs, Leland said.

Each ward and township chairman will have a complete list of the houses in his territory, with duplicate receipts for each residence. These receipts and lists will be given to the individual solicitors proportionately Sunday afternoon.

Headquarters for workers during the drive will be the First Federal Savings and Loan Association. Workers will report there periodically and will receive new materials if it is necessary.

ACCURATE YANK BOMBING OF BERLIN GIVES SCARE TO GERMANS WHO FELT IT

that factory," the eye witness said of the ball bearing works. "The whole place was covered and five or six blocks were blasted or gutted by fire. Berliners simply are astonished that such a small place could be hit so accurately."

The Swede said that he counted 120 big fires and that the whole district was in ruins.

In another precision bombing Wednesday, the Swede said, a submarine parts plant at Wildau also was smashed. He said Propaganda Minister Goebbels, also Gauleiter of Berlin, had called a meeting of all district leaders, high ranking party men, police and Storm Troop leaders to plan total evacuation of Berlin within the next few days, should the daylight raids continue.

German quarters said American losses were higher than the seven bombers and one fighter announced in London. They asserted the losses were not greater because of the weather.

Foreign passengers leaving Berlin received Gestapo warnings not to talk or they would be barred from returning to Germany.

stabbed western Germany, and no night flier was lost.

American planes bombing Berlin through four miles of cloud yesterday encountered virtually no opposition, losing only seven bombers and one fighter. Stockholm said Berlin "has ceased to be a capital or even a town." Another unconfirmed Stockholm dispatch said Reichsmarshal Goering was "utterly bewildered by the strength of the Allied aerial blows" and was being forced to yield control of the German Air Force to younger, smarter men. ary, American planes alone dumped 24,000 tons of bombs on Germany and destroyed 905 aircraft, losing 445.

War in Italy Slows
Only patrols ventured out in the Italian mud and storms. Allied planes flew 900 sorties, bombing beyond Rome. German prisoners since Salerno were said to total 15,000. A Washington dispatch said a dozen U. S. and British warships and a score of other naval craft might be assigned to Russia in lieu of a third of the Italian fleet which might remain intact in the Mediterranean.

The new Russian offensive by the third Ukrainian army was declared by Moscow to have ripped open German lines for 105 miles through which the Red Army advanced 19 to 37 miles. One prong was 40 miles north of the Black Sea port of Nikolaev, and curling around Kherson. Moscow said 8,000 Germans died and 1,000 surrendered on this front alone.

Localities captured around invested Tarnopol were within 95 miles of Czechoslovakia and 55 from Rumania and the Dniester River. Staro-Konstantinov, 26 miles above Proskurov, fell.

Finland Moves for Peace
Acceptance of Russia's original armistice demands might precipitate civil war in Finland, Eric Lindquist, foreign editor of the Swedish newspaper Morgon Tidningen, reported today after a trip to Helsinki.

While Finland was reported awaiting Moscow's reaction to a revised Finnish answer to the Russian terms, Lindquist reported Finnish public opinion was so unprepared for peace that only one person was capable of uniting the people in their current dilemma. This person, he said, was Field Marshal Baron Carl Gustaf Mannerheim, the Finnish commander-in-chief.

There is strong opposition to the government's attempts to get out of the war, not so much because of any feeling of friendliness for the Nazis as because of the long blackout of information had left a great segment of the population unaware of the nation's real predicament.

Other Allied planes hit air-dromes at Wewak, New Guinea, with 56 tons of bombs and knocked down 17 of 40 intercepting enemy planes. Kavieng, New Ireland, took a 65-ton paster.

From New Delhi, India, Associated Press war correspondent Preston Grover reported American and Chinese troops under Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell have driven 100 miles into northern Burma so fast and decisively Japan's War Lords face an immediate decision: to rush in reinforcements to attempt a large scale counter-offensive, or to

HOME NURSING CERTIFICATES ON THURSDAY NIGHT

White Women's Class Has Ceremony at Otis B. Core Home

Eighteen women today have Red Cross certificates for completing the home nursing course taught by Miss Elizabeth Rowland after commencement ceremonies at Mrs. Otis B. Core's home, 618 Yeoman Street.

Mrs. Dana Hyer presented certificates to Miss May Street, Mrs. Core, Mrs. Harley Stackhouse, Mrs. Grover Taylor, Miss Daisy Cockerill, Mrs. Ray Bowers, Miss Helen Hankins, Mrs. Garnet Leaverton, Mrs. Hazel Morris, Mrs. Emily Morris, Mrs. Carl Wilt, Mrs. Ray Mershon, Mrs. Tom Hartman, Mrs. Clifford Foster, Mrs. Charles Gieves, Mrs. Jean Nisley, Miss Frances White and Mrs. John Leland. Miss Rowland, instructor, Mrs. Hyer and Miss Mary D. Robinson, home service director here, were guests at the meeting.

Mrs. Nisley spoke briefly about the Red Cross Blood Donor Service as it operates here, stressing particularly the canteen, of which she has been in charge since the mobile blood unit began coming here.

Miss Robinson told of the coming War Fund Drive and described the work which comes to her at her office daily.

A covered dish supper was served from a long table centered with sweet peas, before the ceremony. The meal was eaten at small tables arranged in the Core home.

OLIVE CLUB TO BE ON AIR SATURDAY

SCHOLARSHIP TESTS MOVED TO MONDAY

Date Advanced from March 17, Rettig Announces

The general scholarship test for high school seniors, previously announced for March 17, will be held Monday, Walter Rettig, principal of the high school, said today.

The test will be given at 9 A. M. Monday in room 114 of the high school building.

Covering social science, mathematics, English and science, the test will be taken by some 30 seniors, Rettig anticipates. Students in all four of the county school system's high schools are eligible for the test as well.

Rettig will administer the test, probably about two and a half hours long.

LT. R. N. BROWNING TO SPEAK HERE

Former New Holland Man To Be at Rotary Club Tuesday

Lt. R. N. Browning, former school teacher at New Holland, will be the Rotary Club speaker next Tuesday noon at the Country Club. Lt. Browning, now stationed at Cincinnati, is an Army Air Corps meteorologist.

He taught in New Holland about five years ago. Lt. Browning entered the service at Mentor, his last teaching post after leaving New Holland.

Lt. Browning took part of his army training at the University of Chicago. His subject has not yet been announced.

HOWARD PORTER RESIGNS SEAT IN CITY COUNCIL

New City Councilman To Be Named Soon

Councilman Howard Porter, who has been ill and unable to attend but one or two meetings since he took office the first of the year, has tendered his resignation and it has been accepted.

It was stated in his resignation that he could not attend due to ill health and was asking to be relieved from office.

No names were offered as a successor and council will name a new councilman at an early meeting, it was indicated.

Previously, Porter had resigned the secretaryship of the Eagles Lodge here. Robert Bailey, who had been his first assistant for months, took over the work of the office.

Although Porter's illness was known to his fellow council members and a few intimates, his resignation from council came as a considerable surprise to the general public.

Just what will be done about filling his seat was uncertain. Charles S. Hire, the city solicitor, is busy as a special prosecutor's assistant in the first degree murder trial of James W. Collett, now under way in Common Pleas Court here, and was not immediately available for comment.

A similar situation exists within the Eagles Lodge where the secretary is considered one of the key officers.

MRS. CAREY HUFFMAN IS CLAIMED THURSDAY

Funeral Services Will Be Held Saturday Afternoon

She is survived by her husband, one step-daughter, Mrs. Jessie Howard of Melvin, one sister, Mrs. Dora Mercer of Sabina and one brother, George Williamson of Staunton.

Mr. and Mrs. Huffman had lived in Staunton for about two years, moving there from West-boro.

Funeral services will be Saturday at 2 P. M. at the Littleton

HILLSBORO TO CHANGE TIME

Greenfield Also on Fast Time April 1

While the question of adopting "slow" or "fast" time is again up in this city, other surrounding cities are beginning to act, and in Hillsboro the return to fast time, or Eastern Standard War Time becomes effective March 31st at midnight.

In Greenfield, the change back to fast time takes place April 1st, and other Highland County towns are expecting to switch back to fast time on April 1.

Some of the other surrounding cities are reported to be ready to change back to fast time about April 1.

In Washington C. H., while slow time has been observed since last fall, most of the factories doing war work have continued on fast time.

Women pilots were first employed by the ferrying division of the Air Transport Command, Army Air Forces, in September, 1942.

MERCURY DROPS TO 11 EARLY FRIDAY MORNING

After reaching a peak of 27 degrees Thursday afternoon, following a low of 8 degrees early in the morning, the temperature dropped to 11 above zero for the low point early Friday morning. At 8 A.M. Friday the reading was 19 degrees, indicating a rapid rise in temperature during the forenoon.

A year ago 59 and 14 were the extremes.

JIM COLLETT IS FOUND GUILTY

Meandering
Along the Main Stem
By WASH FAYETTE

Not everyone is aware of the intense interest of the public generally, here and over a great area, in the Collett murder trial. It has been that way since the shocking triple murder of the McCoy family was discovered early Thanksgiving morning, and perhaps the fact that the story "broke" on Thanksgiving day as well as the terrible details of the crime, added to the general public interest.

Monday night I walked into a confectionery in Columbus at the midnight hour, after having been at the Associated Press office and also visiting Bob Harper, editor of the Ohio State Journal, and some of the other newspaper men in the office at the time.

We were recognized by a woman residing near Greenfield, and instantly she asked:

"What's new in the Collett case?" as so many other have asked during the long weeks since the crime was committed.

"What are they going to do with him?" was the next question, and by that time every clerk in the place who had heard the crime mentioned, had drawn near and started asking additional questions.

After answering as many questions as possible, and we were on the point of leaving the place, a hefty colored woman who was cleaning up for the night, stepped up and said:

"Mister, may I ask you a question?" I told her to go ahead.

"Is Walter McCoy any relation to the murdered Elmer McCoy? You see I know Mr. and Mrs. Walter McCoy and their two children" she declared before I could tell her that Walter is distantly related to the murdered man.

People have strange foibles. . . like being afraid of thunder.

Scientifically, there's not much to thunder. . . just a few billion oppositely charged electrons and protons bumping into each other up in the sky somewhere. . . At least that's the impression I got out of my brief exposure to general science.

But doggone if the soul-shaking sounds that come from those little hunks of electricity don't make me shiver.

It knows it's silly. . . that there's nothing to it but noise. . . and that just because a couple of clouds get into an argument, I shouldn't cringe. . . but I do.

That distant, far-away, rumbling kind of thunder I don't mind. . . when I hear that, I just smile and thank my lucky stars I'm not where it's loudest. . . but when it claps and booms right over my head, my hair almost gets caught in it. . . it stands up so far and so straight.

Scientists also say that lightning comes before thunder. . . that it splits the air apart or something and the coming together of the air causes the noise. . . but I, privately, don't agree with them. The thunder makes gigantic sparks and that, although I couldn't prove my theory to anyone who knows anything about what makes weather tick. . . is what causes the lightning.

The thunder and deluge of rain Monday afternoon was responsible for all this trivia. . . and besides, what's a more universal topic of conversation than the weather?

THOS. HERBERT PROTESTS

COLUMBUS, March 10.—(AP)—Atty. Gen. Thomas J. Herbert, a candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, declared today that Chairman Ed D. Schorr of the State Central committee was supporting another candidate for the nomination and hence "the only honorable course now open to Ed Schorr is to resign."

While Herbert mentioned no name, it is known that Schorr has felt kindly toward the candidacy of Mayor James G. Stewart, a fellow Cincinnati.

AIRFIELD BUILDER DIES

CANTON, March 10.—(AP)—Thomas Emmet Leaby, 67, who supervised construction of the Columbus Army Ordnance Storage Depot, the Barksdale Airfield in Louisiana and several airfields in Texas is dead after a long illness.

U. S. ASKS EIRE TO CLAMP DOWN ON ENEMY SPIES

Action Is Taken To Protect Allied Troop Movements; Policy Is General

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, March 10.—(AP)—The United States has asked neutral Eire to close the German legation and the Japanese consulate as an anti-espionage measure to protect Allied troop movements in northern Ireland.

Although a note presented late in February by David Gray, U. S. minister to Eire, contained no ultimatum and no demand for southern Ireland bases, rumors arose that such demands had been made. A "stand to" by Eire's Army was ordered along the Ulster border from February 25 to February 28.

The British government approved the American note, but the United States is handling the job of trying to plug this information outlet to the Axis.

News of the development reached Belfast early this week, but transmission was banned by British censorship until today.

President Roosevelt was reported to have assured Robert Brennan, the Irish minister to Washington, there was no question of force and that the note simply was a request as a matter of urgency that something be done against Axis activities in Eire.

POLICY IS GENERAL
WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP)—Reports that the United States has requested neutral Eire to break communications with the Axis possibly indicated today a new step in Allied efforts to hinder the flow of information and supplies to Germany preparatory to the invasion.

Since 1942, the United States has kept troops in the northern counties and there is a large Allied naval base in northern Ireland.

TWO-WAY SQUEEZE ON IMPORT WHOOPEE

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP)—The government today put a two-way squeeze on imported whoopee.

A War Production Board order placed strict quota limits on imports of rum, gin, cordials and whiskies made from cane sugar in Cuba, Mexico, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands and elsewhere.

Government sources left no doubt the actions were designed to curtail sugar cane distillates for drinking purposes so greater quantities of molasses might be available to produce war-essential industrial alcohol.

U. S. and British Warships May Be Used By Russia

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP)—More than a dozen British and American surface warships plus a score of other naval craft may be assigned to Russia under the deal now pending for dispersal of the Italian fleet.

The present plan, it was learned today, is to transfer British and American naval units to Russian operation for the duration of the war and leave the Italian fleet relatively intact in the Mediterranean.

Once the Russians have been instructed in the handling of vessels they get, strategic factors indicate they will be put in service on the northern supply route to Murmansk. They can not be moved into the Black Sea because of German control of the eastern Mediterranean. Eventually, if Russia goes to war with Japan they might be employed in the Pacific.

Death Penalty Demanded for Collett; Defense Suggests to Jury That Two Killers Wiped Out Elmer McCoy Family

The fate of James W. Collett, a slight 60-year-old hog breeder accused of slaying the Elmer McCoy family last Thanksgiving Eve, was put in the hands of a jury at 4:27 P. M. (CWT) Friday.

Common Pleas Judge H. M. Rankin gave the jury, composed of nine men and three women, five possible verdicts on each count in the triple slaying case. They were:

Death, first degree murder with recommendation of mercy, second degree murder, manslaughter, and innocent.

Warned of Sympathy
"You should not," Judge Rankin cautioned, "allow your minds to be influenced by sympathy or prejudice, nor is the fear of returning a disagreeable verdict to be considered by you."

Judge Rankin said that alibi was a proper defense, and it was the burden of the state to prove that Collett was in the vicinity of the McCoy home the night McCoy, his wife Forrest and their daughter Mildred were shot to death.

But, Judge Rankin said, a confession must be voluntary to be considered, and it was up to the jury to decide whether a confession in which Collett admitting slaying McCoy himself was given voluntarily.

Arguments to Jury
The jury took over the case at the close of a day given entirely to summation of the case—a day which included a state demand for the death penalty and fervent pleas from the defense that the man be spared.

James N. Linton, chief defense counsel, said as he closed his plea: "If you do find this defendant guilty, I am not here asking mercy."

Linton suggested, for the first time in the trial that has run nearly two weeks, that two killers went to the McCoy home "Oak View" that cold, windy night and assassinated the well-to-do hog breeder, his wife and daughter.

"Someone out of vengeance killed Elmer, and the two women were killed as a cover-up," Linton said. "One man killed Elmer—a confederate was watching to see if Mrs. McCoy had heard. He bungled the job with his 32 and then the master marksman with his 38 shot her in the head."

The McCoy's were slain with two pistols—a 32 and a 38.

Hill Points to 'Killer'
John B. Hill, Fayette County prosecutor, pointed a finger in Collett's face as he wound up for the state and sneered.

The Germans announced today the loss of Uman, one of their strong bases in the western Ukraine, and the Russians said they were storming the rail junction of Tarnopol and knocking at the outer defenses of the Black Sea ports of Nikolaev and Kherson.

Moscow said the whole German line on a 340-mile front in southwest Russia was folding up as Cossacks rode into seas of mud and water. The army newspaper Red Star said the German retreat was "disorganized."

Uman lies 25 miles east of the Russian Bug River between Vinitsa and Kirovograd. The railroad controls a large chunk of territory on the approaches to Rumania.

WACS PASS NOTES TO NAZI PRISONERS

Eight Soldiers Help Two Hostages Escape

CAMP HALE, Colo., March 10.—(AP)—Military disclosures that five WACS exchanged notes with German war prisoners and that eight American soldiers helped two prisoners escape emerged today from investigation of the Germans' flight from Camp Hale with an accused traitor.

An army announcement made clear, however, the notes were not linked with the escape of the Germans who were captured in Mexico February 18 along with Pico Dale Maple, 23, of San Diego, Calif.

Maple, a camp guard, was charged with helping the prisoners flee on February 15 and is being held for trial by court martial on military charges similar to civil code treason.

Statements obtained from Maple, the announcement said, involved the other eight soldiers.

DEATH IN ELECTRIC CHAIR CARRIED IN JURY VERDICT; WIFE IS NOT IN COURT ROOM

Doomed Convicted Triple-Killer Mutters "Oh, God!" as Verdict Is Read - Head Droops and Tears Stream Down Face in Rare Show of Emotion - Jury Out Two Hours and 45 Minutes - One of Jurors Weeps After Obligation Of Society Discharged Against Man Who Wiped Out Elmer McCoy Family Thanksgiving Eve

James W. Collett, a white-haired man who made a small fortune breeding pure-bred hogs and farming, was condemned to the electric chair early Friday night for the triple slaying of the well-to-do Elmer McCoy family last Thanksgiving eve.

A jury of nine men and three women convicted the 60-year-old man on each count of a three-count indictment at the end of a two-week trial, returning a verdict of murder without recommendation of mercy.

The jury deliberated two hours and 45 minutes.

Collett looked at the jury as it came in, watching Foreman Frank Rothrock intently. Bailiff Richard Ramsey took the verdict to the bench, Judge H. M. Rankin studied it, and then handed it to clerk, Mrs. Olive Icenhower.

She read aloud in the deathly quiet court room, and Collett's head dropped. He muttered aloud:

"Oh, God!"

He raised his hand to his forehead, and seemed to pull his head deeper into the high neck brace he wears because of an injured spine.

Tears streamed down his face. He didn't look up again.

Neither his wife nor his son, Thomas, 29, were in the court room at the time.

The room was jammed to its doors, and the corridors were filled throughout the aged court house.

As a bell rang at 8:15, signifying the jury was ready to report, people thronged into the courtroom and waited until Judge Rankin entered and took his bench. He thanked them for having been so "orderly" during the trial and then ordered the jury to report.

The jury came in slowly and went to the box. Mrs. Mary Pond, a farmer's wife and member of the panel, was weeping.

The jurors did not look at Collett, but kept their eyes on the bench until after the panel was dismissed.

Collett, being brought from the jail to hear the verdict, told Deputy Sheriff Frank Grubbs as they went into the court room:

"I didn't expect them back so soon."

His only comment after the verdict was to a newsman:

"I was terribly surprised."

On the way back to jail, he dragged his feet and leaned heavily on a deputy. Two hours before, while waiting for the verdict, he had joked with reporters and told of various awards his son had won.

The old man returned to his cell, where he lay sobbing and refused to see newspapermen. He could be heard as Deputy Frank Grubb went in to talk to him. He declined to comment further without seeing his attorneys.

Mrs. Collett said when she heard of the verdict at the home Mrs. Walter Hays, 715 S. North Street:

"It's just too bad. He had to be insane, something must have just snapped a minute. Jim wasn't in need of money at all this hurt has affected the brain. He got mixed up time after time and said things he didn't mean. Thomas and I neither have any hatred toward anyone. We didn't feel it. We didn't show it during the whole court."

The jury had been given five options in Judge Rankin's charge. They were:

Death, first degree murder with recommendation of mercy, second degree murder, manslaughter, and innocent.

"You should not," Judge Rankin cautioned, "allow your minds to be influenced by sympathy or prejudice, nor is the fear of returning a disagreeable verdict to be considered by you."

Judge Rankin said that alibi was a proper defense, and it was the burden of the state to prove that Collett was in the vicinity of the McCoy home the night McCoy, his wife Forrest and their daughter Mildred were shot to death.

Collett was charged with first degree murder in the deaths of Elmer McCoy, 58, his wife, Forrest, 64, and their school teacher-daughter, Mildred, 22.

Their bodies were found last Thanksgiving morning. Collett was called by defense

Irvin S. Cobb Dies After Long Illness

NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP)—Irvin S. Cobb, 67, humorist and writer, died today at his Hotel Sheraton apartment after a long illness.

Cobb had been ill for the past three months suffering from a series of complications including dropsy. At his bedside when the end came was his wife.

Grantland Rice, sports writer and friend of the family, who announced the death, said the funeral would be private but that further plans had not been made.

The man who contributed handsomely to the fame of his native Paducah, Ky., died unable to fill a promise made last December to Kent Cooper, executive director and general manager of the Associated Press, that "if, as and when I get ready to depart elsewhere I promise to keep friendly newspapers fully advised."

Reported seriously ill in December, Cobb answered in person telephone calls made to the hospital by the press concerning reports he was dangerously ill. His letter to Cooper followed.

After crediting himself for omitting to remark that "reports of my death have been greatly exaggerated," Cobb concluded his note by saying that "doctors are still tapping me for impulsive little freshets of dropsy but the results of these aquatic sports and pastimes will, they believe, diminish as time passes."

GAUZE ARRIVES FOR SURGICAL DRESSING UNIT

Memorial Hall Headquarters
Open Again Monday,
Mrs. Braun Says

With the arrival of gauze for 18,000 four by four surgical dressings, the Red Cross unit will open again Monday afternoon, Mrs. Martha Braun, instructor, said today.

Again she renewed her appeal for more women to work on the five week-day afternoons the unit in Memorial Hall is open. Monday through Friday, from 1 to 4 P.M., women are needed to make dressings. On Monday nights from 7 to 10 P.M., the unit is open also.

So far, the unit has completed 80,400 dressings since work began last September—and that's a lot of work. It isn't really hard work to sit and fold the gauze but it does take time. However, most of the regular devotees of the unit keep coming back, for they like the feeling they get after they know they've done something to help win the war.

Mrs. Braun says that now, with the beginning of the War Fund drive, significance of the unit is magnified and she is particularly eager for a capacity attendance.

DEATH PENALTY DEMANDED FOR COLLETT — DEFENSE HINTS OF TWO KILLERS

(Please Turn To Page Two)

killer of Elmer McCoy and Forrest McCoy and Mildred McCoy," Hill shouted, "he can feel the spirits of those people upon him." Hill, recalling how the defense sought to show that Collett needed a special type of gun to hunt because of a bad shoulder, made a motion like a man shooting a gun and said:

"His trigger finger is all right. Collett killed the McCoy's to get his estate and he had to wipe out the entire family to get it or one of the other McCoy's would have inherited it."

"Murder for Money"

"It wouldn't help him just to kill Elmer McCoy and not kill Forrest and Mildred. That wouldn't help his greedy black heart."

Hill related how Mrs. McCoy had been shot six times and her body left sprawled upon the back porch of the farm home.

"He didn't kill her," Hill declared, "he murdered her with sadistic delight."

"There is a law—an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth." The State of Ohio expects you to find the defendant guilty of murder without recommendation of mercy. He doesn't deserve it!"

Mrs. Collett, who sobbed off and on as the day dragged on, wept again as Linton asserted that Collett himself was a "horror stricken at these murders as you," and Thomas, the Collett's 29-year-old son, reached out and wound his arm around her.

Called Executioner

Collett, in the closing hours of his murder trial, was called alternately a "self-appointed executioner" and a "simple farmer subjected to the most refined torture that has been devised by man."

The state, in its closing summary, demanded that the slight, white-haired hog breeder accused of wiping out the McCoy family be sent to his death. The defense pleaded that he be spared and returned to a wife "deserving your pity and compassion."

Charles Kirk, summing for the defense, went back to that day in December when Collett confessed under a lie detector he killed McCoy.

"From early in the morning until he confessed," Kirk shouted, "the defendant was tied up to this instrument of torture, this modern rack, this lie detector. He was chained to that chair. Even though he may not have been beaten with a lead pipe, he was subjected to the most refined torture that has been devised by man. That is mental torture. He was grilled from 10:30 in the morning until he signed this confession.

"Eckerman (Lt. George Eckerman of the Toledo crime laboratory) was a man groomed in his art, more than a match for this simple farmer."

Kirk declared the prosecution had seen fit to "arouse your anger over the crime and to transfer it to this defendant."

Pitiful Figure

"Do not let your minds be warped by appeals of hate," he pleaded. "He is a pitiful figure, his life has been one misfortune after another, but the crowning bit of bad luck is to be accused of this crime. If there ever was a figure deserving your pity and compassion, it is the wife of the defendant. Added to the death of her brother and sister-in-law is this most bitter charge that her husband committed that crime. The verdict we think you should return is a verdict of not guilty."

Upon a blackboard he drew a time schedule which, based upon hours listed by state and defense witnesses, he said made it impossible for Collett to have been at the McCoy farm at the hour the state says the family of three was slain.

"The only link by which the state attempts to connect the defendant to this case," he added, "is what it pleases to call a confession."

In its arguments in closing its case against Collett, the state demanded that the jury to show justice must send to his death "this self appointed executioner" of the Elmer McCoy family who "has shown the steel nerves of a professional killer."

Such were the words of Simon Leis, state's attorney in the opening argument which occupied nearly an hour. Following Leis, the first argument to the jury for the defense was made by Kirk.

"You Went Too Far"

In a dramatic hour, Leis summed up the prosecution's case against the accused triple slayer, and then, striding down upon the flushed 60-year-old hog breeder, shouted:

"I say to you Collett, you went too far. Man, when you killed Elmer McCoy, why didn't you stop? Remember little Mildred. Perhaps she, a little pigtailed girl, sat on your knee."

Mrs. Collett, sitting by her husband, wept bitterly as Leis shouted and whispered, gesticulated and pointed. Her hands trembled and tears washed down her face. Collett, nervous, grew red; and their son, Thomas, stared constantly at the floor.

"The State of Ohio," Leis thundered, "is going to ask but one verdict—murder in the first degree, and we are specifically going to ask you to withhold the recommendation for mercy."

He traced the trial's testimony, coming to Collett's assertion that his confession of killing McCoy was put in his mouth, that he was mistreated.

"He got on that witness stand and told that impossible story, that he was the victim of a frame-up," Leis said. "He's trying to crucify every public official connected with this case. Who lied on this witness stand? None other than this defendant."

He told of the hunters who came upon the bodies of McCoy, Mrs. McCoy and Mildred at their farm home last Thanksgiving Day. "They saw a scene," Leis said, "there that would cause any man to throw up his hands in horror. There was a young girl shot in the back of the head without a chance. On the porch was an elderly woman, not shot once by this vicious killer, but half a dozen times. Not certain he had killed her, he bent over her and buried into her brain the final shot. You talk about execution. This self-appointed executioner of the family of Elmer McCoy has the steel nerves of a professional killer. The defense goes so far as to accuse innocent people in order to save the worthless life of that defendant."

And then Leis, turning from the jury of nine men and three women, walked toward Collett, pointing a finger, shouting:

"I say to you, Collett, you did go too far."

James N. Linton, chief defense counsel, objected to Leis turning from the jury, and Leis turned away from Collett.

"Greed for money," Leis asserted, "got this man to kill this family, and he recalled testimony that Collett told a friend of his, 'If it weren't for the girl (Mildred McCoy) my son would inherit the estate.'"

Prosecution's Case

The prosecution presented this evidence:

1. A confession, admitted after two days of arguments and over defense objections, in which Collett admitted shooting Elmer McCoy.

2. Testimony from Robert M. Zimmers, a Federal Bureau of Investigation arms expert, who said the bullet which killed McCoy was fired from the same gun as those which killed his wife.

3. That Collett asked Police Lt. George Eckerman of Toledo during questioning preceding the confession if he knew of any recent supreme court action regarding inheritance in case of death of all members of a family and whether Eckerman "thought the McCoy estate would go to his (Collett's) wife."

4. A statement by Howard Hurley, a neighbor, that Collett last summer had remarked "if it

Seen in Sabina

Prosecutor John B. Hill in cross-examination asked Collett if he had been in Sabina the night of the slayings. Collett said he had not, and was dismissed.

The state immediately called the first of six rebuttal witnesses, in an attempt to tear down Collett's alibi.

R. S. Kirk, a Wilmington farmer and third cousin of Charles Kirk, a member of the defense counsel staff, testified he saw Collett in Sabina, 11 miles from Washington C. H., at 8 P. M. Thanksgiving eve.

Another state witness was Dan Dawson, who sells livestock feed at Harveysburg, who said he saw Collett "jump into his car, start it suddenly, and start toward Wilmington with a sudden burst of speed," at about 7:30 P. M.

Collett had testified he went to the feed store at 8 o'clock but found it closed.

The state had rested its case late Tuesday, after using 19 witnesses and insisting Collett would benefit from the deaths of his wife's brother and family.

According to Collett's story, he was home about 9:40 P. M. the night of the murders.

Questioned by Hill, Collett testified that he did not drive on the CCC Highway or through Wilmington the night of the crime; that he did not drive through Sabina toward Washington C. H. that night, and did not stop at the traffic light in Sabina at 8 P. M.

"I said I wasn't there, didn't I?" he shot back at Prosecutor Hill when one of the questions was asked.

He also said the speedometer of his car had never been tampered with.

The state dropped a bombshell in the last few minutes of testimony to climax the trial when Rollo S. Kirk, Wilmington farmer and livestock dealer, said he saw Collett in Sabina heading east toward Washington C. H. about 8 P. M. Thanksgiving Eve.

"Do you know the defendant?" was the first question asked Kirk by Leis, special assistant prosecutor.

"Jimmy?" he answered.

"How long have you known him?"

"About 45 years," Kirk replied.

"Now, Mr. Kirk, calling your attention to the night before Thanksgiving, November 24, last year at about 8 o'clock, where were you at that time?"

"Sabina."

"Where were you going?"

"Home."

"What were you driving in at the time?"

"Buick."

"I will ask you to state whether or not you approached the intersection there where there is a traffic light?"

"Yes, sir."

"And I will ask you to state whether or not at that time you saw the defendant driving his car toward that intersection?"

"I was at the intersection waiting on the light to turn to go toward Wilmington and a car came up at a pretty good rate of speed and the light changed and stopped the car coming east on the highway, giving me the light, and I turned to the right toward Wilmington and it was Mr. Collett."

"He was in the car going east toward Washington C. H.?" Leis asked.

"Yes, sir."

"That was about 8 o'clock?"

"As near as I can remember. When I got home it was 25 minutes after eight."

In cross-examination, Linton, defense attorney, asked Kirk why he didn't speak to Collett if he had known him so long.

"Why would I speak to him if the car windows were rolled up and I was making a turn to the right and Jim was on my left?" Kirk said. Kirk asserted he didn't know the make of car Collett was driving and said his only observation was that "it was a green car."

Kirk said he had served as a police officer in Wilmington, Youngstown, Akron and Cleveland.

Dan Dawson, Negro farmer and feed salesman from Harveysburg, testified he saw Collett start his car "with a sudden burst of speed" from Harveysburg about 7:30 P. M. Thanksgiving Eve.

"He started out a little faster than I generally see him drive," Dawson asserted.

Linton asked Dawson if Collett seemed to have any trouble starting his car.

"He didn't have no trouble takin' a-holt," Dawson said.

Edward H. Ellis, Wilmington garageman, testified the speedometer on Collett's car looked as if it had been tampered with—"the cable had been disconnected from the speedometer," he said.

Pearl McMillan, a Wilmington telephone operator, said a call was recorded from Collett's phone, 6081, to Bloomington 2727.

Linton, after the state rested as rebuttal was finished, said he renewed his motion for the "exclusion of all evidence concerning the so-called confession" and the testimony of Collett, Eckerman, Eggert, Miss Kritchfield, Sheriff Icenhower and statements made by Thomas concerning the death of Elmer, referring to the days from Tuesday, November 30 to Saturday, December 4.

"REALLY A GOOD PLACE TO EAT"

Roy Garrity, Prop.

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Karl Zeppelin, Hitlerian air expert, has exposed to his public the undraped fact that the Nazi retreats on Russian front make it possible for the Red air fleet to attack cities within the Reich—and the German man-in-the-street, his belly already full of Anglo-Yankee bombs, is said to be worried.

Fresh disaster would indeed be heaped on the Fuehrer if the Muscovite bombers should start heavy raiding of eastern Germany in conjunction with the Allied assault from the West and South. Thus far this part of the Reich has been comparatively free of intensive bombing, because of its distance from American and British air bases. Consequently Hitler depends greatly on that area for his war production.

The Germans have plenty of reason for being fearful of death coming out of the eastern skies. The fact that the Russians haven't embarked on a wholesale bombing offensive against Nazi Germany heretofore, doesn't mean they lack air power. On the contrary they possess great aerial strength, but ever since the beginning of the war they've been using their warplanes for the titanic land battles on the long Eastern fighting front.

Several of these engagements are under way now, Marshal Stalin having announced a fresh offensive in the Ukraine last night. The Red armies are making a furious onslaught to cut German Marshal Von Manstein off and either annihilate his forces or batter him down into the crater of the Balkan volcano.

So long as this intensive fighting continues, the Reds likely will want to concentrate their air power on the battle-front. However, an early spring already has turned the steppes into lakes of mud which greatly impedes operations. By April it's possible that there will be a great slackening of fighting for several weeks, though it's unsafe to assume this in view of the way military traditions are being shattered.

However, if there's a lull it presumably will permit the Russians to participate in the reduction of Hitler's strength by bombing. The Muscovites keep the figures of their aerial strength to themselves, but we know they are capable of hurling a great force at the Nazis as witness their recent attacks on the Finns. Certainly the Red fleet may be expected to do intensive bombings of German bases and communications in Poland and Czechoslovakia.

Moscow approves of the Anglo-American air drive against Germany, but it's interesting to have Lt. General Boris Sterligov remind the Allies again through the newspaper Red Star that Hitler won't fall by bombing alone. It will be, says the general, by the "active operations of a land army of many millions in cooperation with air and sea forces."

U. S. ASKS IRELAND TO CLAMP DOWN ON SPIES FOR TROOP SAFETY

Axis agents and strategic purchases in other neutral countries have intensified lately, but this is the first time that any representations to Eire have been reported. This government apparently is taking the lead, with full British backing.

Negotiations are now being carried on with Spain and Portugal in an effort to choke off the flow of war materials to Germany.

Eire no longer is of such top strategic importance as when the battle for the Atlantic was a touch and go matter, and lack of long range planes and aircraft carriers made it impossible to give air cover to merchant ships all the way across the ocean.

BRICKER'S AIM TO DEFEAT NEW DEAL, HE SAYS

Only Party Split Can Prevent Republican Victory, Ohio Governor Believes

CHICAGO, March 10.—(P)—Division among party leaders is "the only thing that can prevent a Republican victory" at the polls this year, says Gov. John W. Bricker, a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination.

"But as for me," Bricker said in an address last night, "I am personally more interested in defeating the New Deal and its absolutism than I am in being elected president of the United States."

The three term Ohio governor, declaring "Democrats are coming into the Republican party by the millions," asserted the "basic issue of our time is whether one man or one party shall permanently regiment 130,000,000 Americans, or whether they shall continue to govern themselves through time-tested institutions of self government."

"Our American system was intended to be a government of and by laws. Under the New Deal it has become a government of and by men. During the past 11 years those in power in Washington have permitted this nation to be blown off its course by the winds of absolutism, emanating from Europe."

Bricker, who addressed the John Ericsson Republican League suggested that "positive action" on four fronts is required "if this country is to purge itself of one man or one party rule." He said "needless bureaucracy" must be eliminated through a new administration; policy making should be left to Congress; centralization of power in Washington must be ended, and the people must be "given the facts on every issue" so they can express their will.

Mediterranean and transferring the other third to Russia for the rest of the war. But as Turkish negotiations dragged, the fleet problem dragged with them and at various times came up for review.

As a result of continued study, the military leaders concluded best results would be had by keeping all the fleet in the Mediterranean and transferring to Russia an equivalent amount of British-American ships. Because of American productive capacity, it appears that most of the transferred ships will be of American origin.

Finally about two weeks ago Russian Ambassador Andrei Gromyko called on the president and asked again about the Russian share of the fleet. It was in comment on this diplomatic inquiry that the president last Friday broke the news that under the surrender terms Russia had a right to her share of Italian naval tonnage.

BADOGGIO HAPPY
NAPLES, March 10.—(P)—Premier Pietro Badoglio expressed gratification today at Prime Minister Churchill's statement on disposition of the Italian fleet. A spokesman for Badoglio's government said "the incident is closed."

Churchill told Commons yesterday the transfer of warships to Russia from either America or Britain, or from the Italian navy, has been under consideration—but that the question of ultimate disposal of Italy's ships might not be settled until the war ends.

FRAZIER REAMS AT TRIAL HERE

Had Part in Development of Crime Laboratory

Frazier Reams was in Washington C. H. to listen in on parts of the trial of James W. Collett, who confessed the killing of Elmer McCoy in the crime detection laboratory in Toledo, development of which by Detective Eggert, he had supported as prosecutor of Lucas (Toledo) County.

Reams described how he and Eggert had planned the laboratory which is now considered one of the best, if not the best, in the state. He said he always was interested in the major cases that were handled there.

As a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, Reams also took occasion while here to call on as many party leaders as possible and to renew friendships.

One of his ambitions, if he is elected governor, he said, was to establish a state crime detection laboratory which would be available to every city, town and small community in the state.

QUESTION MARK REVIVED FOR ARGENTINA AFTER PRESIDENT RESIGNS

sent a notification of his resignation to the Supreme Court. The court, at a hastily convoked session, merely acknowledged receipt of the notification and a manifesto Ramirez addressed to the nation.

Neither document was made public immediately. (Dispatches from Montevideo, Uruguay, said it was reported from Buenos Aires Ramirez' resignation had placed the Farrell regime in a difficult position.

(The Farrell government has taken the position Ramirez had merely delegated his authority to his successor on account of ill-health, and that consequently no issue was raised concerning its recognition by other nations.

(The United States and Britain, however, have withheld formal diplomatic relationships with the Farrell government, pending clarification of its purposes with respect to hemisphere defense and protection against Axis agents. Chile and Bolivia have recognized the Farrell government.)

It was learned authoritatively Ramirez had advised this court he had sent his resignation to Farrell, together with a manifesto to the nation giving his reasons for the action. It was believed the court probably would limit its action to taking note of the communication without expressing an attitude.

Words as Campaign Brickbats
There are 10 words which, in this campaign year, should be labeled "Dynamite—Handle With Care," says Dr. Wilfred Funk, the dictionary maker. They are "ghost words" of fuzzy meaning, he contends, and they have caused "more personal bitterness, broken friendships, mayhem, murder, family brawls and bar-room fights than any others in the political lexicon."

The words? Liberty. Equality. New Deal. Communism. Isolationism. Fascism. Capital. Labor. Justice. Democracy.

Dr. Funk is, of course, eminently correct. They are not the only troublemakers, but they are probably the most frequently employed. We had a fine sample of their explosive qualities in the 1940 presidential campaign. We have had even more pointed examples since the war began. And this year, when the campaign really gets hot, supporters of both candidates are going to ride these words to the limit of their flag-waving or vituperative powers.

The eminent lexicographer offers some sensible suggestions. "Ask each member of a group to write down his or her definition of 'democracy,'" he suggests. "You'll be amused at the widely divergent results."

Unfortunately, Dr. Funk's advice will be little heeded, for each of these words has become an emotional sound of personal passions and prejudices. They have reasonably precise and limiting definitions in Dr. Funk's or Mr. Webster's dictionary. But they have come to mean something different to everyone who uses them. Few private arguers have the logical mind or logical training, and few public speakers have the grace to define terms before using them.

In recent weeks Vice President Wallace has spoken of "American Fascists" in our business world, while Alf Landon has called the New Deal "Fascist." Obviously, both accusations could not be right.

Wallace, it is true, was asked to define a "Fascist" at a subsequent press conference, but his answer did not remotely resemble the dictionary definition.

One could go on down the line. Take "the democracies," which can and do include such divergent governmental systems as those of Russia, China, and all the South American countries in a lump sum, as the occasion and the speaker's purpose warrant.

But what's the use? Deeply as we believe in the power of the printed word, sincerely as we admire Dr. Funk's observations, we are appalled at the prospect of trying, in a campaign year, to wean Americans away from the practice of using words as brickbats and smoke-screens.

Forest Fire Losses

The Department of Agriculture has begun a vitally necessary campaign to reduce the tremendous destruction caused, year after year, by forest fires. Wood, as we all know, is one of the most critical of war materials. Yet last year the number of forest fires was over 210,000. This figure has been reached and topped for season after season, and the Department estimates that at least 190,000 fires are man-caused, and therefore preventable.

2. Was chalk ever alive?
3. Are vampire bats real or myths?

Words of Wisdom

Think of your own faults the first part of the night when you are awake, and of the faults of others the latter part of the night, when you are asleep.—Chinese proverb.

Hints on Etiquette

Don't boast if your son, husband or sweetheart is a lieutenant, major, colonel or general, especially in the presence of a friend whose man in service is a private or non-commissioned officer. They are all serving their country the best they can, and it is rude to make comparisons.

Today's Horoscope

With a quick perception and a keen understanding of human nature, you are led by suggestion rather than by force. The love and friendships you inspire are true and lasting, and you have no real enemies. You are observing, like to travel and will do so extensively. Varied influences operate in the next year. You should safeguard your health and that of the women of your family. Beware of accidents and deal cautiously with authority. Strangers will befriend you. Born on this date a child will experience many ups and downs in health and business. Many obstacles, however, will be overcome.

One-Minute Test Answers

1. A huge, extinct animal.
2. Yes, it is composed of shells of animals who lived centuries ago.
3. They are real bats, but they do not usually suck blood.

ure has been reached and topped for season after season, and the Department estimates that at least 190,000 fires are man-caused, and therefore preventable.

Forest fires affect more than our timber supply. They induce soil erosion and seasonal floods. They destroy wild life. And they complicate the manpower shortage by requiring nearly 1,000,000 man-days each year to fight them.

The rules for preventing this dangerous wastage are the same as ever: Smoke only in safe places, and be sure matches, cigarettes, cigars and pipe ashes are out before you leave them; take care in building and extinguishing camp fires; don't burn brush unless you know how and when to do it.

Washington at a Glance

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—The intensity with which Washington diplomatic and military circles have watched Russo-Finnish peace negotiations might seem out of all proportion to its ultimate effect on the defeat of the Nazis, but that isn't true.

Although the United States never followed the lead of its Allied in declaring war on Finland, it did ban Finnish "propaganda" in this country in 1942. As a result, Hjalmar Procopé, popular Finnish minister here, has had to keep his tongue tied publicly. That was too bad.

A frank discussion of what Finland was up against, the actions of its leaders as well as a consideration of what the Nazis were doing in Finland and how Russia felt about it might have ended hostilities long ago. It has been pretty much a static war until Russia recently unleashed those bombing raids over Helsinki. But it has been a far more important sector to both ourselves and the Nazis than appears on the surface. Despite some 300,000 persons of Finnish descent in this country and despite our sympathies expressed through monetary aid when Finland was fighting her first war against the Russians, our conception of the real importance of Finland in the European war picture has been pretty hazy.

To most of us, Finland was merely a "little" country that paid its debts, produced excellent musicians, athletes and ski troopers, and was addicted to those strenuous steam baths.

If that were all, courage to the contrary, Finland would never have meant much either way in the war. Although there are only about 3,500,000 Finns, the country in area is the seventh largest in Europe.

It's pretty reliably reported that the Nazis have kept about 100,000 troops in Finland and they weren't there for winter sports. They have constantly been a threat to Murmansk and the 900-mile railroad that links the port with Leningrad and the gateway to the front.

They have kept the Russians from the Baltic and provided a dangerous flank against advances in Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia.

Even that isn't all. At last report (it's believed to be even greater now) Finland supplied five percent of the world's war-vital nickel—some 18,000 tons a year. It also produces copper, wood pulp, plywood, cellulose, and everything wooden from matches to airplane propellers.

Uses of Penicillin and Sulfa Drugs

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

I AM grateful that I have lived long enough to see a dream of my youth become a reality. When I was a medical student and young hospital interne we—my colleagues and I—used to speculate on some chemical which would enter the blood and kill off germs without injuring the body cells. Salvarsan, which came in my time, did the trick for syphilis, but the nearest we came to anything for ordinary germs was mercuriochrome, which we used to give for blood poisoning. It ended the lives of only about twice as many blood poison victims as would have gone ordinarily, and the experience made us suspicious.

Sulfa Drugs

Then came the sulfa drugs with their overwhelming success in just this field, and now a new drug, penicillin, which seems to be in many ways even better than the sulfa drugs. It seems to me a great credit to the medical profession that right at the time they had found a germicidal drug which worked in vivo, when another came along they started with equal enthusiasm to go over all the same clinical investigations on the new one.

We were told a decade ago that no new medical discoveries would be made by accident—only by planned experiment—but the discovery of penicillin was an accident. In 1929 Dr. Alexander Fleming, a London bacteriologist, noticed that some of his plate cultures of the germ staphylococcus (the pus producer) were contaminated by a mold, and that on the plates where the mold grew, the staphylococci did not grow. Following this up he identified the mold as Penicillium natatum and showed that on both cultures it displayed an inhibitory action on a number of germs both outside and inside the animal body.

Since then researches have advanced our knowledge of this product by leaps and bounds. A suitable method of making a potent extract was found, the proper strength, or dosage, of the drug was determined, its toxic, or dangerous aspects recorded, and its administration was found to be effective only if given by vein, or into the muscle, or topically applied to an open wound. The world generally does not realize how much of this preliminary spadework has to be done before a new preparation can be tried out clinically.

Kinds of Infection

I know little about penicillin, even how to pronounce it, because it is not yet generally available for civilian practice, but many hospital centers of investigation have shown in what kinds of infections it is valuable.

First come the pus infections with staphylococci. The sulfa drugs are effective against pneumonia germs (pneumococci) and streptococci, which cause certain kinds of blood poisoning, but not very effective against staphylococci. Now for staphylococci, boils, carbuncles, infected bone (osteomyelitis), middle ear disease and several other forms of staphylococcal infection, penicillin is an effective killer. For these it has been called bacterial dynamite.

Against pneumonia and meningitis and gonococcal infection it is also very effective.

Also against a number of rare infections of only occasional interest to the layman—the gas-forming germ, bacillus Welchii, etc. It has been favorably reported in the treatment of a few cases of syphilis.

It has the great advantage over the sulfa drugs that it is less toxic even when given in doses far above what is necessary for therapeutic results.

A Model is Murdered ~ BABS LEE
CHAPTER NINETEEN
As the little circle of light played on the various objects in Syria Verne's living room, Argus whistled. "Some spot," he murmured admiringly. "Look at that painting over there." He concentrated his flash on a huge canvas in a heavy gilt frame. It was a Van Gogh. The rug beneath their feet felt thick and soft. Built-in bookcases lined one end of the room, reaching from the ceiling down to about four feet from the floor. There were bookcases also on either side of the French windows.
In one corner, its back and one side surrounded with books was a satiny, square mahogany table. On it was a telephone. To the left was a lamp. In the space directly over its smooth surface and set in the bookcase was a machine that looked like a radio except that it had no dial.
"According to the diagram in the paper," said Argus, "Syria was found lying face down at the base of that table, with the telephone in her right hand."
"It gives me the creeps!" whispered Ellen, her teeth chattering. Argus crossed the room and turned on the lamp. Soft light filled the room. Ellen looked around. "That better?" Argus asked. "Yes," Ellen agreed. "What a lovely apartment! I'd imagined Syria as living in a modern sort of place with white rugs and lots of mirrors. But this room is so comfortable, so well done. The pieces in here are the sort of person of excellent taste would spend years in collecting."
"It is out of character at that. I'll lay you a bet that Syria didn't furnish the place herself. If she had there'd be more chaise longue!" "Look at these porcelains on the mantelpiece," Ellen picked up two figurines, a shepherd and his shepherdess. She turned one of them over. Stamped on the bottom was the word "Limoges."
Then the detective directed Ellen to "start over there by the entrance to this room and pretend you've just come home. You hear the phone ringing. You come over and answer it. Just as you get the receiver to your ear there's a shot. You fall down at the base of this table. Got it?"
"Yes, but I don't like it very much."
Ellen followed instructions. Argus watched her carefully. She stepped off the distance from the door to the telephone and picked up the receiver.
"Bang!" exclaimed Argus. Ellen fell to the floor.
"Stay where you are a minute, will you, darling? Anything strike you as strange about that shot?"
"It was an exceptionally peaceful bang."
"No, seriously. I'll show you what I mean. This table is in corner, flush against the wall and the bookcases, which surround two sides. To the left is the lamp. Now, the only way to answer that phone was the way you did—walk directly up to it and pick it up."
"Yes, but—"
"Stand in front of this table again and hold that receiver in your hand for a second," Ellen did so. "Remember that Syria was shot through the chest as she stood there. Look around you. Where could the murderer have stood in order to have shot her through the chest? You're facing the bookcase and this built-in machine that looks like a radio but which is an air-conditioner. To your right are more bookcases. To your left is a lamp and a chair. From the position the body was in when she was found, we know that some one must've been standing directly in front of her. But where?"
"That's right. Unless the murderer was standing on the table. There's no room any place else."
"Exactly. And the murderer wasn't standing on the table because the angle at which the bullet entered the body shows that. So that leaves two other possibilities. Either there must be a hidden panel behind the bookcase through which the murderer fired, or some sort of mechanical gadget must've been hidden behind the books or—wait a minute—"
"But how—if it was some mechanical device, how would the murderer know that the bullet would hit Syria?" Ellen asked. "I've got it! Yes! That must be it!"
"What must be it?"
"This air-conditioning machine. Look at these little holes in the grillwork." The holes were about half an inch in diameter and formed a circular pattern on the face of the machine. "They serve as ventilators and they're just about the right size for a bullet to pass through."
"You mean—"
"I mean that I'll find a gun inside this machine. It's in the proper position, just over the table, so that any one picking up the phone would come in direct range of a shot."
"But even if that were true, I still don't see how the murderer could be sure any one would be around when it went off," Ellen declared.
Argus didn't reply. He was dusting some powder over the top of the air-conditioner. He waited a second and then blew off the excess. "Is that how you find fingerprints?" Ellen asked, following the operation with rapt attention.
"If there are any. I brought it along just in case."
"Are there?" Argus inspected the surface carefully through a pocket magnifying glass.
"No. I hardly expected to find any. I wonder if there's a screwdriver in the joint. Take a look in the kitchen, will you, darling?"
Ellen returned a few minutes later with a small screwdriver and a pair of pliers. Argus was squinting into the ventilating holes, one after another.
"Now I'll take the top off this machine and we'll see what we shall see." Argus suited the action to his words. It took the detective only a couple of minutes to complete the job. He took his flashlight from his pocket and explored the contrivance.
"Yip-pee . . . Here's the gun! Come and look, Ellen."
"Golly!" she exclaimed, leaning over his shoulder. "Then the murderer didn't have to be in the apartment at all when she was shot. But how did it work? Was it like a time bomb?"
Argus took down several books carefully and examined each one as he did so. Then he set them on a nearby chair. "There's a wire back here. Let's see where it leads to." Without touching it he followed its course back of some more books. He removed these likewise. "Look!" he said excitedly. "This wire leads into the telephone box where the bell is and it's all hidden from sight behind those books."
"What do you make of that, Argus?"
"Unless my guess is wrong, darling, it means just one thing! Syria Verne was murdered by telephone!"
"Telephone!"
"Yep. I don't know quite how it worked yet, but I will." He played his light along the bookshelf and the wire leading to the bell box. Then he returned to the machine itself. "The gun inside was mounted so that the end of an inch away from the ventilator hole in the center of the left pattern; one end of a piece of twine was fastened to the trigger and the other was fastened to the revolving axis of the blower that cooled the air. The wire from the phone box led to the switch that started the motor of the air-conditioning machine."
"Very ingenious!" observed Argus. "Your murderer seems to be something of an electrical expert. Apparently he also had a knowledge of this apartment and its layout, and knew when Syria would be out, so he'd have time to install it."
"Something caught his eye and he picked it up. It was a short, bristly red hair, barely noticeable, inside the machine at the base of the gun mount."
"Find something?" Ellen asked. "A reddish hair. See if you can find an envelope to put it in."
Ellen found one in a Queen Anne desk on the other side of the room and handed it to him. Argus dropped the hair into it and placed the envelope in his pocket. Taking another piece of paper and a pencil he jotted down the serial number of the air-conditioning machine and the make. Then, adjusting his camera, he took a flashlight photo of the interior of the unit. He put in a new plate and replaced the expended bulb.
"Shhhh!" warned Ellen. "What's that?"

NEW INDUSTRIES EYING OHIO MAY HELP CED HERE

County Committee To Meet Again Soon To Plan for Post-war Cushion

The group of Fayette County businessmen—and that includes farmers—now working out plans to soften the jolt that most believe is inevitable after the war as a county Committee for Economic Development (CED) today could take some comfort from the report of W. H. Hampton, chairman of the Ohio Development and Publicity Commission that many industries have shown interest in moving into Ohio after the war.

Whether the county CED would make any attempt to attract any of them to Washington C. H., or the county's villages, remained conjectural, but loomed as a possible subject for detailed discussion at its next meeting.

The primary purpose of the CED, under the chairmanship of Ray Brandenburg, as brought out at the initial meeting about two weeks ago, is to make a survey of the city and county to determine the present economic status of the people and then, in the light of pre-war conditions, determine the outlook for the post-war period.

Early discussions of the committee passed up almost entirely any consideration of new industries. The implication, however, was that this phase of development would be taken up later, possibly by a revived Chamber of Commerce, if the CED found it necessary to encourage industrial expansion to provide jobs for returning service men and women and workers in war industries left jobless by cessation of hostilities.

It was emphasized at the first meeting that the survey's purpose was to be the basis for making plans to provide post-war jobs here.

The CED here, it was explained, is only one unit of a nationwide organization dedicated to balking a slump such as that which hit the country after the last war.

The next meeting of the county CED probably will be called next week, the chairman said. The consensus at the initial meeting was that the first phase of the work—the surveys—could and would be completed in "not more than 30 days."

With that data as a guide, the chairman intimated the committee then would begin to lay its definite post-war plans.

Already one of the nation's most highly developed industrial states, Ohio through the commission has distributed a booklet to show the state's advantages in natural resources, manpower and transportation.

Hampton said he would meet representatives of some of the potential Ohio industries next week.

He explained the commission was prepared to furnish information on available plant sites, to help plan for their best utilization and to give reports on availability of water, gas, electricity and railway service.

Dr. John Cunningham, dean of the Ohio State University College of Agriculture said a chemurgic committee would be named soon to function in the same capacity as an industrial subcommittee appointed by Hampton yesterday. Members named to this industrial committee include: C. B. Morin, Ohio Power Company, Canton, and H. C. Atkinson, Akron, Canton & Youngstown railroad, Akron.

One of those things that happen only in the movies happened during the making of "Gung Ho!" the action drama opening Sunday at the State Theater, and it happened with plenty of witnesses.

In front of the Marine's post exchange, Ray Enright was directing a scene with Grace McDonald and Dave Bruce.

The picture, produced for Universal by Walter Wanger at the Marine Base and Camp Pendleton, is the story of Lieut. Col. Evans P. Carlson's historical raid on Jap-held Makin Island.

Lieut. Col. Carlson, as technical and story consultant, was watching a scene in rehearsal when three Marines stepped up to him with snappy salutes.

Then came one of the most enthusiastic "family" reunions. The three Marines were among Carlson's Raiders in the Makin Island assault, but he had not seen them since he left them in the Solomons last April.

He knew them by their first names, almost shook their arms off and patted each on the back.

They were Technical Sergeant Charles Sewell, Glendale, Calif.; Master Technical Sergeant Robert E. Marks, Boston, Mass., and Corp. William Dickerson, Austin, Tex. The three were radio communications men during the raid and right in the thick of the fighting. OF HUMAN INTEREST At The War Front

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Naples, March 10—(P)—

Into the legends of lost battalions were written today the heroic but hopeless fight of two battalions of United States Fifth Army Rangers who spearheaded an attack out of the Anzio beachhead on Cisterna Di Littoria early on the morning of last Jan. 30.

Trapped when they reached the village on the Appian Way at the base of the Colli Laziali Hills, none but a handful ever have come back from the attack. The Germans announced at the time that about 100 were killed and the remainder, some 950, were taken prisoner.

The Rangers gave up only after they had fired their last round of ammunition and thrown their last grenade against vastly superior German forces they encountered after they had infiltrated four miles through enemy lines in a stirring night and day action.

"There will be a sequel to it," vowed a few stragglers who came back to tell their story.

Corp. Ben W. Mosier of Astabula, O., one of the few who returned, told a Stars and Stripes correspondent that during their night infiltration through German lines they were close enough to German batteries at times to hear the crews giving orders in German.

"When it got light," Mosier said, "we saw one big building ahead and trees all around it. Behind us there was one tank and when we saw it we cheered. We thought it was supporting us. We couldn't see it very well—and then it opened up on us."

37,853 YANKS DIE IN WAR UP TO DATE

Total Casualties Are 162,282 Stimson Says

WASHINGTON, March 10—(P)—American casualties in this war so far total 162,282, of whom 37,853 are dead.

Secretary of War Stimson, at a news conference today, announced that army casualties (as of Feb. 23) totaled 121,458. Of this number, 20,592 were killed, 47,318 wounded, 26,326 are missing and 27,222 are prisoners of war.

The latest Navy total is 40,824, made up of 17,261 killed, 9,910 wounded, 9,239 missing and 4,414 prisoners of war. These figures cover the Marine Corps and Coast Guard as well as the Navy proper. Of the total casualties the Navy has suffered 27,383, Marines 12,986 and the Coast Guard 455.

Stimson said that of the 47,318 Army wounded, 25,291 have been returned to duty or discharged. Of the 27,222 prisoners, Stimson said, the enemy has reported 1,673 have died of disease in prison camps. These deaths, Stimson commented, occurred mostly in Japanese-occupied areas and the total probably is larger than reported by the enemy.

Lt. Col. George R. Bickell, 27, of Nutley, N. J., who led the stout Mustangs on both Berlin raids, said:

"We were with the bombers for 40 minutes and saw very little stuff and no more than half a dozen enemy aircraft. It was nowhere near as rough as the other time. For us today, there wasn't anything to it."

A conference committee has worked out the difference between the House and Senate on the Soldiers' Vote Bill, and the compromise measure is expected to be approved some time this week. Final draft of the bill will be almost a complete victory for the "state ballot" forces, and is thought to be so drawn as to eliminate any question of constitutionality. Under the compromise only state ballots can be used for armed service voting in the United States. Those with the armed forces overseas must also use state ballots except under the following conditions: (1) The governor of the state in which the voter resides certifies before August 1st that the federal ballot is acceptable and will be counted under the law of that particular state. (2) The individual overseas desiring the federal ballot takes oath that he applied for a state ballot before September 1st, and that it had not been received by October 1st. The state ballot plan will permit service men and women to vote for every candidate on the ballot, from president down to coroner. The federal ballot would permit voting only for president, senator and representative by writing in the names of the candidates.

Another real clash between the Congress and the President is developing over the growing practice of officials of the Roosevelt administration refusing to testify before congressional investigating committees, under the excuse that such testimony would bare confidential relations with the President, or would not be in the public interest. Some of those refusing to testify have specifically stated they were doing so under direct orders of the President. Congress has the constitutional power to conduct investigations and to compel the appearance and testimony of witnesses before its committees. Without such power Congress would be helpless to obtain information necessary for the proper functioning of government, or to investigate violations of the law. Committees of both the Senate and House are now considering a filing of contempt charges against several high administration executives. Conviction would carry either fine or imprisonment, or both.

Representative Albert Engle of Michigan, the one man investigating committee, has called attention of the Congress and the country to the fact that the gigantic Pentagon building, which is the largest office structure in the world, actually cost eighty-six million dollars instead of the thirty-five million authorized by Congress. The additional fifty-one million dollars was taken from funds Congress had appropriated for fighting and winning the war, without its knowledge, consent or approval. The building was erected under the supervision and direction of Brehon B. Somervell, then a brigadier general. Somervell is also the gentleman responsible for spending one hundred and thirty million dollars on the Canal oil project in Northern Canada, which has become almost a national scandal. He is considered a protégé of Harry Hopkins, under whom he served as WPA director in New York. He is now a lieutenant general, evidently winning his promotion because of his spending proclivities.

A congressional study of the administration's national housing program is also under way, and many shocking situations are coming to light. Here in Washington there have been completed, in the past few months, six huge housing projects owned by the Defense Homes Corporation, a government controlled and financed organization. Most of these projects have not been in use over six months and outside work, such as grading, etc., is not yet completed. The total cost was more than fifty-three million dollars. Yet the government has already offered them for sale to private interests at 75% of their cost, or at a loss of thirteen million dollars, with no takers thus far. The chief selling obstacle is the contention by private business interests that the government structures cost two or three times as much to build as similar buildings would cost if erected by private enterprise. For instance, the government fixes the cost for each room at Naylor Gardens as $1,920. Investigators insist the actual cost was $2,235 per room. Fairfax Village, a similar privately constructed project, cost but $1,162 per room. At McLean Gardens the government reports its cost at $2,600 per room. Investigators claim the actual cost was $3,280 per room. Keywood Gardens, a similar project erected by private owners, cost $1,250 per room. The differential between government and private construction costs on the other projects run approximately the same. And still there are many, both within and without the administration, who are still attempting to destroy free enterprise and institute government ownership and control in its place.

An exchange of correspondence between Secretary of War Stimson and Congressman Fish of New York, as inserted in the Congressional Record last week, discloses that practically no Negro troops, outside of one small air squadron, have been assigned to combat duty overseas. Instead, most of the troops have been used purely for service assignments. As a result a number of national Negro organizations are protesting the discrimination. Representative Fish, who commanded a Negro fighting unit in World War No. 1, has, in speeches on the floor of the House, pointed out the fine and distinguished record colored combat troops have made in past wars, and has demanded that better and more dignified use be made of the service of Negro patriots in this war.

son and Congressman Fish of New York, as inserted in the Congressional Record last week, discloses that practically no Negro troops, outside of one small air squadron, have been assigned to combat duty overseas. Instead, most of the troops have been used purely for service assignments. As a result a number of national Negro organizations are protesting the discrimination. Representative Fish, who commanded a Negro fighting unit in World War No. 1, has, in speeches on the floor of the House, pointed out the fine and distinguished record colored combat troops have made in past wars, and has demanded that better and more dignified use be made of the service of Negro patriots in this war.

Elmwood Aid Society Meets On Thursday

Thirty-five members of the Elmwood Aid Society were entertained at the home of Mrs. Floyd Tracey, Thursday afternoon for the March meeting to which three guests were invited. They were Mrs. Charles Allemang, Mrs. Wert Wilson and Mrs. Albert Backenstoe.

Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Backenstoe were taken into the society as new members at this meeting.

The business meeting was presided over by the president, Mrs. Floyd Tracey. During the course of the discussion, it was announced that a $50 war bond had been purchased during the past month. It was voted upon at this time to give a substantial contribution to the Lion's Club Canteen at the Bus Station and also to the Red Cross during their next drive here.

Mrs. Foster Wikle gave an interesting and instructive Red Cross reading, after which Mrs. S. E. Simmons and Mrs. William Clark conducted hilarious contests.

The hostess and her committee served an appetizing salad course late in the afternoon and a St. Patrick's Day color scheme was carried out. Assisting Mrs. Tracey were Mrs. Claude Zimmerman, Mrs. William Clark, Mrs. Foster Wikle, Mrs. Carroll Williams and Mrs. S. E. Simmons.

The U. S. Army Air Forces had a total of only 159 four-engined bombers on December 7, 1941.

Fortnightly Men's Night Party Held At Country Club

One hundred and twenty members and guests of the Washington Country Club assembled in the spacious club lounge, Thursday evening, for their fortnightly Men's Night dinner and evening of cards.

Hosts for the St. Patrick's Day party were Messrs. Wert Shoop, Hoy O. Simons, F. E. Hill and J. J. Kelly and they greeted each guest and members at the door and presented them with a shamrock boutonniere.

A delicious turkey dinner was served at several large tables in the lounge by the club hostess, Mrs. Hazel Devins and her assistants. Throughout the attractive rooms a profusion of St. Patrick's Day decorations were greatly admired.

At the close of the congenial and pleasurable dinner hour, Mr. Ray Brandenburg ably presided as toastmaster and introduced Mr. Don Kelley of Hamilton, Irish tenor who presented artistically a group of old favorites. He was resoundingly received by the guests and members. Next on the program was Mr. Walter Shoop, accordion soloist from Sabina and his program of music was also well received.

The remainder of the evening was spent in the usual games of cards.

St. Patrick Theme Carried Out at Luncheon - Bridge

Hostesses for the fortnightly luncheon-bridge party held at the Washington Country Club, Thursday afternoon were chairman, Mrs. Sam Parrett and assisting were Mrs. Ottilie Morrow and Mrs. Walter Jones.

Thirty-five members of the club assembled at one o'clock in the spacious club house for the serving of a most delicious and appetizing luncheon by the club hostess, Mrs. Hazel Devins. The tables were cleverly centered with small potted plants decorated with green crepe paper which were later presented as bridge prizes, and a profusion of green candles and small favors were attractively placed around the rooms.

During the afternoon of bridge prizes were awarded to Mrs. Stanley Paxson, Mrs. M. J. Hagerty and Mrs. W. L. O'Brien.

Personals

Seventeen members and one guest, Mrs. Will Stinson, of the Thursday Kensington Club were entertained at the home of Mrs. George B. Parkin for a delightful and congenial afternoon of sewing and visiting, as is the usual custom of the Kensington clubs.

Late in the afternoon, the hostess invited her guests to the dining room where, at one large table and two smaller ones, a dainty and appetizing dessert course was served. Centering each prettily appointed table was a bowl of attractive spring flowers, their dainty colors adding much to the graciousness of the social hour.

The Odako Campfire group met Thursday afternoon in Central school with the meeting in charge of the president, Marilyn Van Voorhis.

A discussion was held on the Camp Fire laws, the trail seekers rank and wood gatherers rank.

After the business meeting was over, games were enjoyed by the fourteen members present.

POET'S CORNER

"DON'T SAY IT"

If someone did something you didn't approve, And you feel you should chasten; Don't say it.

A thought like that is better unsaid, Because there are some who won't take it.

If she has a manner of which you don't like, And you feel you should change it; Don't say it.

There are a good many people, who take it to heart, And when it's summed up, they can't make it.

If a friend heard something, a scandal, perhaps, And you want to repeat it; Don't say it.

It may be true, and yet it may not; Quite possibly they cannot help it.

It's a bit of advice, which I pass on to you; If it does one no-good; Don't say it.

For if the story came around a month from today; It would be so enlarged, you'd not know it.

There are enemies who lurk at the front of our minds; If you have a grave secret, Don't say it.

For a secret can't do any definite harm; If there is no-one to spread it.

LEGIONNAIRES BPWC BACKING RED CROSS HERE

War Fund for $28,500 Starts
Here Next Sunday
Afternoon

Two organizations here—one a men's group and the other a women's club—endorse the Red Cross War Fund drive for $28,500, to begin here Sunday.

Herbert E. Wilson, commander of Paul H. Hughes Post 25 expresses the sentiment of all veterans of World War I as he says: "We fully appreciate the unique and indispensable service of the American Red Cross. Many of our members had the opportunity of seeing this great organization at work on the battlefields in the last war. Most of us have sons on the fighting fronts in this war. We know the American Red Cross is with them in sickness or in health, on the field, in the hospital, and leave centers. It feeds, comforts, houses, and entertains them when a furlough must be spent in a strange city; gives them comfort articles when they return from battle and performs untold services to American troops. The American Red Cross is our helping hand reaching out to them, because it is supported by our contributions."

"The American Legion wholeheartedly endorses the American Red Cross and urges every member to support the War Fund drive during the month of March. We appeal also to the families of men now in service and can personally assure them that their contributions to the American Red Cross War Fund will go a long way toward building morale and relieving suffering in the armed services."

"Let's keep the Red Cross by his side so that he will return soon."

Members of the Business and Professional Women's Club here are cooperating with the Red Cross War Fund drive in every way possible. Miss Helen Slavens, president, has urged these busy women to give both time and money to help raise the $28,500 needed here.

Miss Slavens says: "The war spotlight will focus on the American Red Cross in March, which has been designated by President Roosevelt as the month for its third annual war fund drive."

"In order to keep the Red Cross flag flying on the fighting and home fronts, this war fund quota of $28,500 must be met. It is the responsibility of every American citizen to respond to this current appeal in every possible way and to the greatest possible extent."

"Red Cross obligations, delegated by the Congress of the United States, will continue even after war ends for it serves as the connecting link between members of the armed forces and their families, and is responsible for ex-servicemen."

"The Red Cross is depending upon our support to carry on its humane tasks. Members of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc. in contributing their full share to this fund, will be helping the Red Cross to serve humanity."

She received birthday cakes, 200 greeting cards, fruit flowers and various other gifts. Among them

TINY SUBS SCORE FOR ALLIES!

Undersea Craft, Modelled After Japs' Doom Tirpitz

DEATH FOR TIRPITZ—A British artist's version of the submarine attack on the battleship Tirpitz in Alten fjord, Norway. Detail of Nazi stronghold accurate; but sub's silhouette (for military reasons) isn't.

By JERRY DREYER

Central Press Correspondent

NEW YORK—The mighty 41,300-ton Nazi super-battleship Tirpitz lies at the bottom of a Norwegian fjord, crippled and unable to prowls the North Atlantic for the merchantmen that are carrying the supplies used to blast Hitler out of his fortress. And it took a David to knock out the Goliath.

Nature was with the Germans when they berthed the Tirpitz in the northern waters to protect her against attack by the Allies. Speedy bombers, after numerous bombings, reported that their tactics were hit-or-miss. It was impossible for them to bomb accurately because of the steep mountains rising from the edge of the waters. With the battleship snuggled against these mountains, point-blank assaults would be suicide.

The Nazis boasted that the ship also was safe from attack by surface craft—the chances of attackers being sighted after entering the 60-mile-long fjord would provide them plenty of time to set in operation their defenses.

A Serious Threat

The Tirpitz must be sunk or crippled, the British Navy insisted. While it was in operating condition it was a serious threat to Allied shipping in the North Atlantic.

There was only one way to push the attack home, they reasoned—by submarine. That, too, was ruled out after some thought. Undoubtedly, the Nazis had installed strong anti-submarine and torpedo nets. They were stymied.

The Japs provided the solution. It was the midget subs they used during their sneak attack on Pearl Harbor that provided the clue. Underwater craft that size stood a reasonably safe chance of avoiding detection than their larger brothers. Information the United States obtained from study of one of the tiny craft captured on Dec. 7, 1941, was sent to the British, who copied and improved.

The British government has just revealed full story of the attack. A group of the especially-built subs manned by carefully selected three-man crews were responsible for the extensive damage done to the raider, enough damage, it is claimed, to keep the ship out of the war for a long time to come.

being a telegram from Lt. Tom Snyder of Ft. Eustis, Va., a half-brother of Mrs. Fawcett. Also a letter and check from "Jimmy" Donohoe, Boston, Texas, a former Sabina boy, with cards coming to her from Los Angeles and New York.

Before the navy British sailors had the opportunity to send their warheads into the vitals of the ship, they had to negotiate 1,000 miles of open water before reaching Alten fjord. Then came the

according to charts, he figured they were close enough for a quick look-see through the periscopes. Motors just idling, two long steel fingers emerged from the sea.

Their deductions were correct: the Tirpitz was 200 yards—dead ahead, at point blank range. Well trained for the task, not a motion was lost as torpedoes were fired and found their marks to bring to an almost successful conclusion their long months of training. The warheads struck home with tremendous explosions, but before the sub commanders could leave the scene the Nazis brought them to the surface, probably with depth charges, and most of the crews and their commanders were taken prisoner, but not before they scuttled the tiny craft.

Information available concerning the small subs shows that equipment was reduced to barest essentials.

There are two torpedo tubes. When one is fired, adjustments of trim must be made to counter the loss of balance. Two propellers are provided, one on the port side and the other carried on the starboard. These, incidentally, provide an emergency steering method should the steering apparatus be damaged by depth charges.

dangerous task of creeping through the anti-submarine devices without being detected. It is not revealed how they sneaked past the nets.

Either of two ways was possible—to sneak under the nets or wait until they were opened to permit a German ship to enter. In any event, the commander of the submarine force proceeded cautiously until,

—Spying—
On Sports
By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP)—Some Denver, Colo., boys in a naval unit in the South Pacific have decided they want to sponsor teams in the "Old Timers" Baseball Association this year and will have a league all their own, with teams named after the "various ships." All they'll get out of it will be weekly reports from Jack Carberry, Denver Post sports editor and the old timer behind the "old timers," but it gives some idea of how a baseball idea can take hold if it is given a chance. The men planning for baseball's future would do well to take a second glance at this setup.

The "Old Timers" are some 300 men who once played on uniformed baseball teams and who are willing to put up a buck apiece to foster baseball competition among boys from 11 to 17 years old. This year they'll have about 1,300 boys competing in 120 leagues in Denver and suburban Englewood. That's more than double last year's total and it's a good example of how many potential players and fans there are if somebody will take the trouble to turn his attention to the national game. . . . Skipping most of the details, the oldtimers' setup merely gives boys a chance to play baseball, with adequate fields, equipment and coaching, promises no rewards other than trophies for city championship teams and possibly state school scholarships for a few outstanding boys. . . . It also prevents abuses by "sponsors" and gives every boy an equal chance. . . . Carberry explains: "A kid in this league plays to play baseball—nothing else." . . . Judging by the figures, nothing else is necessary.

Couldn't Pin Him Down
One of the few good yarns we've heard about bowling is related by Rex Hess, of the Mansfield, Ohio News-Journal. . . . It seems Hess went to interview a kiegler who had just bowled a perfect game and found he had started celebrating before he started bowling. . . . In fact, the interviewer explained, he had stopped at that place across the street for a few quick ones and when he got into action he could see three balls rolling down the alley toward 30 pins. "All I did was keep on rolling them," the bowler explained. "I figured that any guy who couldn't knock down ten pins out of 30 with three balls must be drunk."

Cleveland Rams
Are Coming Back To Pro Football

CLEVELAND, March 10.—(AP)—The Cleveland Rams will be back in the National Football League in 1944—and to make this definite, Chili Walsh, coach and vice-president, is offering $50 rewards for information leading to the "capture" of players. Walsh conferred with Capt. Dan Reeves, Rams' owner stationed at the Army Air Depot in Rome, N. Y., and announced he would "pay $50 for information leading to the capture and contracting of any football player who is available and eligible under league rules, and who will remain with the club for at least three regularly scheduled games." Walsh has scouts in every section of the country and has sent questionnaires to approximately 1,000 prospective players. Most of the Rams' players were drafted by other league teams for use in 1943, but they will return to the club this year if not caught in the Selective Service draft.

WAR DIMS HOPES OF

By JACK HAND
NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP)—With infielder Billy Herman sailing away to join the Navy and pitcher Ed Head marching off in a soldier's suit, the Brooklyn Dodgers' National League pennant aspirations have suffered a severe relapse almost on the eve of their first spring training drills. Deacon Branch Rickey broke the news to the Gowanus Faithful yesterday and added that pitcher Bill Lohrman had informed him he would take his army physical next Monday. Herman, the cornerstone of the infield, told Rickey he had been accepted for service and soon would be in the Navy and Head wrote from Shreveport, La., he had been examined and accepted by the army.

The Brooks have 18 experienced men definitely set to open camp at Bear Mountain, N. Y., next Wednesday and 15 other in the "doubtful" class. Other news from the baseball front includes:

National League
BOSTON.—Bob Quinn has discovered that he "gave" Columbus $7,500 for outfielder Chet Wiecek. He has learned the player whom he drafted from the American Association Club is in the army.

PHILADELPHIA.—With signing of outfielder Buster Adams, the Blue Jays report 16 in the fold. Herb Pennock announced signing of George Gasdaskas, 18-year-old Bethlehem, Pa., high school boy, to be sent to the Bradford, Pa., farm in the Pony League.

CHICAGO.—First baseman Phil Cavaretta informed club officials that he has been called up for army physical today at Milwaukee. If Cavaretta is accepted, the Cubs will have to depend on either Heinz Becker or the veteran Jimmie Fox.

BROOKLYN.—In addition to the news on Herman, Head and Lohrman, Rickey announced that Lloyd Waner had been reinstated and that he had given permission to catcher Mickey Owen to stay at his Springfield, Mo., farm during the early days of the training season.

American League
St. Louis.—Outfielder Frank Demaree, recently released by the Cardinals, signed by the Browns.

CHICAGO.—Outfielder Thurman Tucker announced he had passed his physical examination and pitcher Al Epperly, acquired in the baseball draft, said he would either stay on his farm or be in the armed service. Pitchers John Harvey and Charles Graumann and outfielder pitcher Ed Carnett signed contracts.

DETROIT.—Pitchers Hal Newhouser and Zeb Eaton took part in early training workout at Evansville, Ind., in freezing weather.

PHILADELPHIA.—Athletics reported 26 signed and only two holdouts, outfielder Bill Burgo and pitcher Luke (Hot Potato) Hamlin. Connie Mack said Bobo Newsom not considered holdout as he was just seeing if he could get in shape to pitch.

Ohio State Baseball League
May Go With Only Four Teams

COLUMBUS, March 10.—(AP)—The Class D Ohio State baseball league will operate this year with only four clubs if necessary. President Joe Donnelly said today in calling a schedule meeting here for Sunday, March 19.

Donnelly said Springfield, Middletown, Zanesville and Lima would be definite starters, and that the meeting would determine whether Newark and Marion also would play.

Both have completed organization and are seeking major league backing, which Donnelly reported might be arranged. Of the four certain starters, only Lima has been unable to arrange an agreement with some big league club. Springfield will work with the New York Giants, Middletown with the Boston

Americans through the Louisville Colonels and Zanesville will have player support from the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Donnelly said Frank M. Colley, public relations director of the league, was completing two schedules for approval. One calls for a 130-game schedule if six clubs participate, the other for 126 games if only four take the field.

In either event, Donnelly said, the season will open on Tuesday, May 2, and close on Labor Day, Sept. 4.

Pure Oilers Protest Win
By Mt. Sterling Bowlers

The top spot Mt. Sterling bowlers took three games from the Pure Oilers in a match that went into the record under a Pure Oil protest in which exception was taken to what was described as a rectification of the handicap allowed the Mt. Sterling team.

The dispute came about when the handicapper said the Mt. Sterling team had been given too low a handicap, the result of faulty addition in computing it. Jeffersonville's Ringers, staging somewhat of a comeback after a slump that took them out of the lead, made a clean sweep of their series with the Melvin Stone Crushers in a regular Men's City League match on the Main Street alleys Thursday night.

The Coca Colas took the last two games of their match from the Producers after having dropped the opener by 100 pins and Pennington's Bakers won the first two games from Slagle & Kirk but went into a tail spin and lost the last one.

Braves Out $7,500
Paid for Fielder

BOSTON, March 10.—(AP)—The Boston Braves are out the $7,500 they paid the Columbus American Association Club for the services of outfielder Chester Wiecek, president Bob Quinn announced last night. The sum represented the draft price paid for the outfielder, who has been inducted and is stationed in New Orleans.

Under baseball law the Columbus club retains the draft payment but the Braves retain their title to Wiecek.

POSSIBLE REDUCTION IN

BALTIMORE, March 10.—(AP)—Possible reduction in gasoline rations was forecast today by a Maryland Office of Price Administration spokesman.

The official declared there are definite indications that such action may be taken.

WAR JOB FIRST FOR FIGHTER

By LARRY SMITH
CLEVELAND, March 10.—(AP)—Jimmy Bivins has turned down a $22,500 guarantee for a Los Angeles bout with Turkey Thompson because he doesn't want to be an absentee from his defense job.

"There are some things that count more than boxin' money these days," the country's top ranking civilian heavyweight explains. "I don't belong any place else than Cleveland nowadays. The defense job I've got may not be the most important job in the world, but it's important enough to keep me right here in town until further notice."

The Cleveland Negro said he had advised his managers to notify promoter Tom Gallery that he would not make the trip to California because it would take too much time from his work.

The 1-A Bivins is a checker at the Broadhead-Garrett Co., a concern that supplies lumber to numerous war plants.

Charles Macrae, company general manager, said "this Bivins boy is one of the most valuable of all workers we've got at our lumber plant. He worked eight full hours a week ago last Tuesday, with his fight with Lee Q. Murray coming up that very night, and he was at work before eight o'clock the next day."

Bivins won a unanimous 10-round decision over Murray, flooring the gangling easterner for a nine count in the ninth round and extended his succession of ring victories to 15.

Frankie Sinkwich Accepted by Army

FT. MCPHERSON, Ga., March 10.—(AP)—Frankie Sinkwich, Detroit professional football player, was accepted by the army yesterday after a pre-induction physical examination.

A former star at the University of Georgia, he will return to his Youngstown, O., home to await call by his Clark County (Ga.) draft board, where he registered while a student at the university.

GRAIN-MARKET
NEWS SUMMARY

CHICAGO, March 10.—(AP)—Oats and barley were strong on the grain market today. May oats moving to a new seasonal high, in reflection of a good cash demand for both grains. A slump in the movement of corn from the country has caused an expanded demand for other feed grains from feed manufacturers.

The May rye contract jumped more than a cent at one time, largely on short covering by local traders, and deferred deliveries made fair gains. Surrounding strength was reflected in wheat, which was ahead fractionally, but interest in the bread cereal continued light and the number of transactions was small.

At the close wheat was 1/4-1/2 higher, May $1.71 1/4, oats were up 1/4-1/2, May $1.25 1/4, rye was 1/4-1/2 higher, May $1.25 1/4, and barley was up 1/4-1/2, May $1.24 1/4.

DAY'S ACTIVITIES IN WALL STREET

NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP)—Buyers took on moderate amounts of rails and specialties in today's stock market while leaders generally continued to suffer from light profit taking.

The carrier section firmed after a hesitant start and there was a shattering of new highs in evidence near the fourth hour. Dealers were well under the million-share rate.

Investment demand, based mainly on earnings and dividend hopes, remained as the main purchasing inspiration. The war news was more or less ignored and little selling to raise March 15 income tax funds was reported.

DETAILS WORKED OUT NOW IN RED CROSS WAR FUND

Victory Sing Drive Opener Will Begin Sunday at 2:30 P. M.

Final details for the Victory Sing opening of the $28,500 Red Cross War Fund drive here Sunday at 2:30 P. M. in WHS auditorium, are worked out now, John Leland, campaign manager, said today.

The climax of the sing will be Sgt. Ted Yoakum, convalescing from wounds received in North Africa, who is scheduled to speak about his experiences. Sgt. Yoakum will probably speak after the "This Is Worth Fighting For" number in the sing, directed by Paul Fitzwater.

Leland will speak briefly to explain what the drive means and what the money contributed will buy.

After the sing, all township and ward workers will go to 14 separate school rooms—one for each township and one for each ward—to get materials for solicitation. Room numbers will be designated on the backs of the programs, Leland said.

Each ward and township chairman will have a complete list of the houses in his territory, with duplicate receipts for each residence. These receipts and lists will be given to the individual solicitors proportionately Sunday afternoon.

Headquarters for workers during the drive will be the First Federal Savings and Loan Association. Workers will report there periodically and will receive new materials if it is necessary.

ACCURATE YANK BOMBING OF BERLIN GIVES SCARE TO GERMANS WHO FELT IT

that factory," the eye witness said of the ball bearing works. "The whole place was covered and five or six blocks were blasted or gutted by fire. Berliners simply are astonished that such a small place could be hit so accurately."

The Swede said that he counted 120 big fires and that the whole district was in ruins.

In another precision bombing Wednesday, the Swede said, a submarine parts plant at Wildau also was smashed. He said Propaganda Minister Goebbels, also Gauleiter of Berlin, had called a meeting of all district leaders, high ranking party men, police and Storm Troop leaders to plan total evacuation of Berlin within the next few days, should the daylight raids continue.

German quarters said American losses were higher than the seven bombers and one fighter announced in London. They asserted the losses were not greater because of the weather.

Foreign passengers leaving Berlin received Gestapo warnings not to talk or they would be barred from returning to Germany.

stabbed western Germany, and no night flier was lost.

American planes bombing Berlin through four miles of cloud yesterday encountered virtually no opposition, losing only seven bombers and one fighter. Stockholm said Berlin "has ceased to be a capital or even a town." Another unconfirmed Stockholm dispatch said Reichsmarshal Goering was "utterly bewildered by the strength of the Allied aerial blows" and was being forced to yield control of the German Air Force to younger, smarter men. ary, American planes alone dumped 24,000 tons of bombs on Germany and destroyed 905 aircraft, losing 445.

War in Italy Slows
Only patrols ventured out in the Italian mud and storms. Allied planes flew 900 sorties, bombing beyond Rome. German prisoners since Salerno were said to total 15,000. A Washington dispatch said a dozen U. S. and British warships and a score of other naval craft might be assigned to Russia in lieu of a third of the Italian fleet which might remain intact in the Mediterranean.

The New Russian offensive by the third Ukrainian army was declared by Moscow to have ripped open German lines for 105 miles through which the Red Army advanced 19 to 37 miles. One prong was 40 miles north of the Black Sea port of Nikolaev, and curling around Kherson. Moscow said 8,000 Germans died and 1,000 surrendered on this front alone.

Localities captured around invested Tarnopol were within 95 miles of Czechoslovakia and 55 from Rumania and the Dniester River. Staro-Konstantinov, 26 miles above Proskurov, fell.

Finland Moves for Peace
Acceptance of Russia's original armistice demands might precipitate civil war in Finland, Eric Lindquist, foreign editor of the Swedish newspaper Morgon Tidningen, reported today after a trip to Helsinki.

While Finland was reported awaiting Moscow's reaction to a revised Finnish answer to the Russian terms, Lindquist reported Finnish public opinion was so unprepared for peace that only one person was capable of uniting the people in their current dilemma. This person, he said, was Field Marshal Baron Carl Gustaf Mannerheim, the Finnish commander-in-chief.

There is strong opposition to the government's attempts to get out of the war, not so much because of any feeling of friendliness for the Nazis as because of the long blackout of information had left a great segment of the population unaware of the nation's real predicament.

HOME NURSING CERTIFICATES ON THURSDAY NIGHT

White Women's Class Has Ceremony at Otis B. Core Home

Eighteen women today have Red Cross certificates for completing the home nursing course taught by Miss Elizabeth Rowland after commencement ceremonies at Mrs. Otis B. Core's home, 618 Yeoman Street.

Mrs. Dana Hyer presented certificates to Miss May Street, Mrs. Core, Mrs. Harley Stackhouse, Mrs. Grover Taylor, Miss Daisy Cockerill, Mrs. Ray Bowlers, Miss Helen Hankins, Mrs. Garnet Leaverton, Mrs. Hazel Morris, Mrs. Emily Morris, Mrs. Carl Wilt, Mrs. Ray Mershon, Mrs. Tom Hartman, Mrs. Clifford Foster, Mrs. Charles Grieves, Mrs. Jean Nisley, Miss Frances White and Mrs. John Leland. Miss Rowland, instructor, Mrs. Hyer and Miss Mary D. Robinson, home service director here, were guests at the meeting.

Mrs. Nisley spoke briefly about the Red Cross Blood Donor Service as it operates here, stressing particularly the canteen, of which she has been in charge since the mobile blood unit began coming here.

Miss Robinson told of the coming War Fund Drive and described the work which comes to her at her office daily.

A covered dish supper was served from a long table centered with sweet peas, before the ceremony. The meal was eaten at small tables arranged in the Core home.

SCHOLARSHIP TESTS MOVED TO MONDAY

Date Advanced from March 17, Rettig Announces

The general scholarship test for high school seniors, previously announced for March 17, will be held Monday, Walter Rettig, principal of the high school, said today.

The test will be given at 9 A. M. Monday in room 114 of the high school building.

Covering social science, mathematics, English and science, the test will be taken by some 30 seniors, Rettig anticipates. Students in all four of the county school system's high schools are eligible for the test as well.

Rettig will administer the test, probably about two and a half hours long.

NO APRIL FOOL TIME!
PORTSMOUTH, March 10—(P)—City council last night voted to change from standard to war time Sunday, April 2, rather than Saturday, April 1—and "April Fool's Day"—as earlier planned.

HOWARD PORTER RESIGNS SEAT IN CITY COUNCIL

New City Councilman To Be Named Soon

Councilman Howard Porter, who has been ill and unable to attend but one or two meetings since he took office the first of the year, has tendered his resignation and it has been accepted.

It was stated in his resignation that he could not attend due to ill health and was asking to be relieved from office.

No names were offered as a successor and council will name a new councilman at an early meeting, it was indicated.

Previously, Porter had resigned the secretaryship of the Eagles Lodge here, Robert Bailey, who had been his first assistant for months, took over the work of the office.

Although Porter's illness was known to his fellow council members and a few intimates, his resignation from council came as a considerable surprise to the general public.

Just what will be done about filling his seat was uncertain. Charles S. Hire, the city solicitor, is busy as a special prosecutor's assistant in the first degree murder trial of James W. Collett, now under way in Common Pleas Court here, and was not immediately available for comment.

A similar situation exists within the Eagles Lodge where the secretary is considered one of the key officers.

MRS. CAREY HUFFMAN IS CLAIMED THURSDAY

Funeral Services Will Be Held Saturday Afternoon

Mrs. Carey Huffman, 78, died Thursday at 4 P. M. at her home in Staunton. She had been in failing health for about three years.

She is survived by her husband, one step-daughter, Mrs. Jessie Howard of Melvin, one sister, Mrs. Dora Mercer of Sabina and one brother, George Williamson of Staunton.

Mr. and Mrs. Huffman had lived in Staunton for about two years, moving there from West-boro.

Funeral services will be Saturday at 2 P. M. at the Littleton

HILLSBORO TO CHANGE TIME

Greenfield Also on Fast Time April 1

While the question of adopting "slow" or "fast" time is again up in this city, other surrounding cities are beginning to act, and in Hillsboro the return to fast time, or Eastern Standard War Time becomes effective March 31st at midnight.

In Greenfield, the change back to fast time takes place April 1st, and other Highland County towns are expecting to switch back to fast time on April 1.

Some of the other surrounding cities are reported to be ready to change back to fast time about April 1.

In Washington C. H., while slow time has been observed since last fall, most of the factories doing war work have continued on fast time.

Women pilots were first employed by the ferrying division of the Air Transport Command, Army Air Forces, in September, 1942.

Caps to Match Coats 49c

Which would YOU choose? . . .

LOOKING back at your own childhood, are you glad or sorry, now, that you didn't learn to play the piano? If you could re-live your childhood all over again, now, would you choose to have movies and toys and candy . . . or piano lessons?

Yes, we know the answer. You'd choose the piano lessons. And now you have the opportunity to make that same wise decision for your child. . . .
